April 10, 1986

It's Eastwood, Laiolo and Fischer in landslide

By MICHAEL GARDNER

IN THE election heard around the world, it is no longer Clint Eastwood, the actor.

It is Clint Eastwood, the mayor of Carmel-

Eastwood, the world-famous actor known for his Dirty Harry and Man with No Name spaghetti western roles, overwhelmingly eleated incumbent Mayor Charlotte Town-

Eastwood, who will serve a two-year term or $200 monthly, will be sworn in April 15.

Also swept into four-year terms on the Eastwood ticket were Elinor Laiolo, a former public school administrator; and Bob Fischer, the ex-assistant Carmel police chief who retired after 31 years of service in the department.

Laiolo and Fischer, who also will be sworn in next Tuesday, replace incumbents David Muradei and Robert Stephenson, both of whom served a single, four-year term.

Nearly three out of every four (73 percent) of the Carmel registered voters went to the polls, giving Eastwood a 2,166 to 799 margin of victory, according to unofficial results. Environmental Party candidate Tim Grady finished with 31 while businessman Paul Laub, who dropped out of the race five days ago to support Eastwood, received six votes.

Eastwood's landslide win carried over into the council race where Laiolo garnered 1,896 votes with Fischer right behind at 1,850.

Maradei finished third at 635 and in fourth followed by Tom May, 458; Anne Woolworth, 243; Don Lampson, 106; and Robert Weber, 79.

renovation of city hall, both in personnel and cadilly Park. structural remodeling.

But it is the disappointments that led to their downfall — the list of undone projects over four years is just as numerous as the tally of accomplishments.

Awaiting the new council are: Sunset Center parking, settlement of litigation concerning the Odello Ranch and Spanish Bay development, and which direction to go on the proposed Carmel River dam.

BUT MORE importantly, the overwhelming win is an indication that this town is ready for a change in attitude, or so says Eastwood.

Eastwood's key campaign theme has been "bringing the community together" — a slogan he says was developed in response to concerns that the council was too highhanded in its dealings with the merchants in particular and residents in general.

Eastwood contends that the council lacked s, fairness and an interst in dealing in "neighborly way" rather than "intimidation" and "high handedness."

Eastwood promises an open ear, pleases and thank yous in his dealings.

In an exclusive interview with the Carmel Pine Cone/Chimel Valley Outlook minutes after the results were innounced, Eastwood talked about his first day's agenda; the campaign and the media hype that reached a climax Tuesday night with 200 journalists sardined into the Sunset Center press conference.

"I guess I feel good," Eastwood said.

"I've campaigned long and hard. I've done 55 teas. It feels good. I got to meet an awful lot of people neighbors and exchange ideas. It makes me appreciate my community even more than I did."

Eastwood promised more public participation in the government, saying he wants to "take the government out of the hands of the few and put it into the hands of the many."

The city will use more of its "local talent" during the next two years instead of "high-priced" consultants.

On his first day's agenda, Eastwood includes "immediate" action on the proposed Sunset Center parking garage and addresses the traffic congestion problems in town.

The city, under his leadership, will join the was Stephenson with 592 votes. They were Holman Highway Task Force and the assessment district to study the proposed Carmel River dam, he said.

Eastwood promised to move "briskly Surely the achievemments are con-ahead" on public restrooms at Devendorf siderable, ranging from a massive and speedy Park (the council already has approved the beach rehabilitation project, to completion design and construction is scheduled for sumof a pro-resident general plan to a complete mer). And he wants public restrooms at Pic-

On the election of Fischer and Laiolo, Eastwood said, "It's just wonderful...We both feel the personal and neighborly aspects of local government could be better."

EASTWOOD said he was surprised by the margin of victory, adding that "I think it's good. An awful lot of people are advocating change. I think it's a culmination of the impersonal acts that have dissatisfied Asked whether his star status helped or hurt the campaign, Eastwood replied: "I have to admit that I was worried about the

Now let's work together

Dear Editor:

By this edition of the paper the election will be over.

Now is the time to take our neighbors hand and throw back our heads and laugh at this wonderful life that gives us so much passion and fun!

Because whether or not my neighbor voted as I did, he voted the way he did because he passionately wants the best for Carmel.

It seems to me that being mayor or being on the council involves a devotion to a job that is sometimes interesting, sometimes fun, but mostly tedious, rather boring, and sometimes scary.

The most important thing about this election is that it has made us all aware of the problems we are presently facing, the solutions of which are vitally important to our wellbeing.

As I write this letter I don't know who is going to win, but now that I have a grasp of the problems as a whole, whomever wins is going to have my whole-hearted support in helping to solve these problems. Who my neighbor votes for in the election has nothing to do with it.

So, let's not let the momentum we have built so passionately for the welfare of our city fade away, let's use it to help the mayor and the council make Carmel an even more wonderful place to live.

Message from Marina

When the sun shines on the Monterey Peninsula, on Carmel and the Valley, it's breathtakingly beautiful. The only place maybe more desirable, is Pebble Beach. For someone not familiar with this area, all these places even though separately governed, run together, geographically touching the rugged coastline of the Pacific Ocean. Carmel and the Valley have the best of both worlds, the ocean and the green hills. We who live here are lucky to experience such beauty at any time; it makes one thankful to be alive.

April 8, 1986 Carmel elects a new mayor. Clint Eastwood, actor, director, producer and Carmel businessman is campaigning for that post.

Usually I play golf on Tuesdays, but since the Monterey Bay Republican Women's Club has Clint Eastwood as their guest speaker I chose to have lunch instead. The function was held at the Mission Inn at the mouth of the Valley. There must have been about 230 members, guests and television and newspaper people.

When someone asked him how he will finance his campaign, Clint said that he just had a free lunch. In my opinion, after hearing Clint Eastwood speak, Carmel will get a good leader in him. He was personable (so tall and good looking), had a good sense of humor and he answered every question from the floor in detail and with ease and charm. He seemed a little shy which made all the women there (including me) just love him.

Oh, I remember him in Paint Your Wagon, but that was some time ago! Now Clint Eastwood is a mature person in his early 50s. He has lived in this area 25 years. He said that he loves Carmel and what's more, he wants the job of mayor, a two-year commitment. He said it's his way of paying back what Carmel has given him.

I mentioned that the Sunset Cultural Center needed an indoor facelift and he was very nice to want to look into it. Said that I certainly should be comfortable when I see a performance there. See what I mean about his sense of humor? I don't live in Carmel but Clint Eastwood has my vote any time. I was ready to run out and help raise funds for the Sunset Center project. I shook hands with him and he kiddingly said that I could do the decorating of the Sunset Center. I told him that I wasn't into that but he could count on me for a donation.

I was sitting with our Marina mayor, George Takahashi and future Marina city councilwoman Patti Bradshaw. One of the girls at our table asked me if I worked for Mayor Takahashi.

"No," I told her, "but I wouldn't mind working for the future Carmel mayor."

Just kidding! I don't need another hobby. Maybe I could drop one of the ones I already have? No, just kidding! I didn't know that politics could be such fun. Maybe I will drop one of my old hobbies anyway!

Keep spaces open

Dear Editor:

The urge to develop is obsessive in the West. Sometimes the real estate is not attractive, and you can say that the developers made a productive area out of it.

There was not much going on in that semidesert land between the mountains and the sea in Southern California. The people who wanted to make something out of it went up along the Owens Valley, and secured the water rights in the river. So they took that precious liquid, and made the desert bloom like a rose.

Of course, Bishop, Lone Pine, and towns along that watershed have never grown as they might have, but then we have the "Great Amoeba," Los Angeles, as a result. Although it is one of the great cities of the world, not many people want to live there.

Now the Monterey Peninsula has been contiful all the time. We had been fortunate for many years, but now development is being allowed that will ultimately change the area so that the reason most of us came here will vanish.

It has always been pleasant to look at the landscape just south of the Mission Ranch, and to admire the restraint in density at the ranch itself. I love the old two-story house. Two of my friends were born there.

Let us keep as much open space as we can. Sam Colburn Pacific Grove

A new age

BY THE time you read this the biggest little election in America will have been history.

Much has been said, written and recorded - perhaps even oversaid, overwritten and overrecorded — about this election, one that has attracted news media from all over the world, and who knows, maybe even a few planets out

The media madness has been heightened the last few days, perhaps reaching its ludicrous pinnacle (make that nadir) at the so-called "block party" on Lincoln Street on Sunday. That was no block party, it looked more like the aftermath of a British soccer match. It was also a sad, but funny sight to see four television camera crews shooting each other for lack of anything better to do outside the post office on Monday. Tuesday was another story.

So far the news media have acquitted themselves well, with a few glaring exceptions, which I won't mention here. We'll let the "make my day" and "Dirty Harry is going to clean up" clips and comments slide for now, but anyone making those references after today should be forced to clean all the popcorn off the floor of Bud's Pub for 10 consecutive weekends...at 11 p.m.

The final press conference at Sunset Center Tuesday evening resembled a media feeding frenzy, with banks of television cameras recording every twitch and twitter and still photographers snapping and whirring away, while reporters shouted their questions out in no particular order, and for some, for no rhyme or reason.

But it's all over now and the news media will pack their bags and move onto other stories and we can finally get about the business of pulling this community together and forging ahead with a new outlook and a new city council.

The results of Tuesday's vote were obvious: The time had come for a change and the residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea have not only spoken, they have spoken loudly.

So what the community needs to do now is give this new council — Mayor Clint Eastwood, council members Eleanor Laiolo, and Bob Fischer, as well as James Wright and Helen Arnold — a little breathing room, some time to work together, learn about each other and get down to solving the very real problems of this village by the sea.

The citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea have seen a new age and they have embraced it...wholeheartedly.

hoopla and the press thing. Carmel is a star itself."

The media attention will slowly wither away, he believes.

"I think they'll start leaving tomorrow. I don't see it sustaining," he said.

However, Eastwood does hope that the local interest builds rather than dwindles.

"I'd love to sustain the interest of the community. I'm hoping to bring more people into city hall," he said.

Eastwood says he has no plans to seek higher office, despite the path blazed by another actor, and now president, Ronald Reagan

"None of that stuff for me," he laughed. "All I'm interested in is our city and that we have a great life here," he said.

Townsend, who describes herself as "just another neighbor lady" with a deep commitment and love for the village, was gracious in defeat.

Townsend expressed "astonishment" at the margin of victory. "I think it was an extremely well-fought campaign."

Asked whether the results indicate a shift from the strong resident-oriented tempo set by this council, Townsend replied, "The whole election and the whole campaign has been so out of the ordinary that it would be difficult for me to make an assessment."

She indicated that this council, because of its action-oriented policies, was placed under tremendous public scrutiny this election.

"When you do nothing you don't make enemies," she said.

Townsend added that she "absolutely"

will assist in the transition of power.

Maradei was unavailable and Stephenson appeared tired and was visibly upset.

"I just didn't think the rank and file citizen voters would be impressed. Apparently I was wrong," he said.

Laiolo, wife of former Carmel Mayor Barney Laiolo, literally jumped for joy at her victory

"I'm overwhelmed, absolutely delighted," she said. "I think it's a clear statement from the voters of Carmel that they want a change in the policy making body of the city government."

The voters are looking for "an openness in dealing with city business and more use of local talent in working on community problems," Laiolo said.

Top priorities as a council member, Laiolo said, are to deal with the litigation the city is currently involved in and then parking.

"I would like to give a thorough review to the ordinances coming out of the general plan," said Laiolo, specifically citing second kitchens and land use ordinances

Whether she would always agree with Eastwood and Fischer on matters before the council, Laiolo said, "I think I can't answer that until the issues are presented for voting. I said I would do in-depth research on all issues that come before the council and that is what I'll do."

Each candidate won on individual merit, Laiolo said, and the victories were not due to Eastwood's "coattails."

"We each ran as individuals. The voters have chosen the three individuals they wanted to serve," she said.

FISCHER said he "felt pretty good right now" after hearing he had won a council seat.

"This indicates that Carmel felt there was a change needed," Fischer said of vote. "It was a tremendous turnout."

The turnout was not due to Eastwood's candidacy, Fischer believes, but "due primarily to the need for a change in government. The apathy is over. The change indicates a new vitality."

Settling the pending litigation is his "number one priority," Fischer said.

The senior citizen housing project on Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue is another issue Fischer wants to study.

"I'm in favor of the project, but I feel that there might be room for improvement."

Second kitchens and the general plan are also issues Fischer said he would like to concentrate on.

Fischer said he did not believe that he, Laiolo and Eastwood ran as a slate.

"Elinor and I both started as independents. As things went along, we found that our beliefs paralleled," he said.

"I'm sure there will be differences (between the new council members) and expect that. In fact, some fresh ideas would be good."

What finally tipped the scales against the former city council, Fischer said, was the denial of the ice cream parlor.

"Regardless of the real reasons for denying the permit, it diminished Carmel all over the world. The idea of a city not allowing an ice cream parlor within city limits is un-American," he said.

Water needs on peninsula may be less than expected

By NANCY HILLS

FUTURE WATER needs may be less than previously expected according to a draft report the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board will review at its April 14 meeting.

In addition to the growth projection report, the cities of Carmel, Pacific Grove, Sand City and Seaside will give presentations about each city's water policies.

The district staff will also report on the reasons for not adopting a financing scheme for a water reclamation plant as proposed in a report by consultant Frank Dryden. The Dryden report compared water reclamation schemes for the district. It recommended using additional potable water allocations as a legal basis for forming a special assessment district designed to pay for a reclamation project.

The board meeting will convene 7:30 p.m. Monday April 14 in the Monterey City Council Chambers.

EIP Corporation will present the board with a draft of its projections for growth in the water district up to the year 2020, EIP is the consulting firm preparing an environmental impact report for the proposed San Clemente Dam. The proposed dam is planned to provide additional drought protection for the peninsula up to year 2020.

The district will use the growth projections to assess the size of dam needed to meet future needs, compare growth with and without a dam, and to manage the water supply.

The projections are based on city and county general plans and analyses by regional economists and district staff. The report is still in process and is subject to change, warned water district project coordinator Henrietta Stern.

Revisions in general plans and growth forecasts by Monterey County and cities within the water district have changed the projected demands on the peninsula's resources and indicate a pattern of less growth.

A first draft by the water district from statistics gathered by EIP indicated a population of 117,174 in 2020 if the dam is built. Full build-out of the district was projected at 144,394. According to the water management district, the 1985 population within its boundries was 98,858.

Without a dam, the original draft projected a population of 111,193.

Bruce Buel, water district general manager, explained that planners prepare for the greatest build-out when they project for the future. Buel said he believed that full build-out of the peninsula probably will not hap-

A side effect to not building the dam, Buel suggested, could be increased growth in areas not dependent on the dam for more water.

DURING THE meeting, the board will continue its program of reports on water allocation and conservation policies from jurisdictions within the water district. The board instituted the program after many of the cities came within 90 percent of their allocations.

Carmel-by-the-Sea's presentation was rescheduled for the April meeting when Brian Roseth, Carmel assistant planner, became ill in March. Roseth was scheduled to give Carmel's presentation at last month's board meeting.

Roseth said he will review Carmel's water ordinance, Number 85-1. The city council passed the ordinance in December 1984.

The ordinance states that water usage in the city approaches the city's total water allocation of 1,030.8 ac. ft. per year and that "the remaining development potential...far exceeds the capacity of the city's remaining water resources."

Their job is building; not hotels, but plants

JUST ABOUT every morning Marylee Guinon and Dave Allen arrive at the Spanish Bay resort construction site in Pebble Beach right along side the construction crew.

But Allen and Guinon do not spec plans, drive bulldozers or pound nails.

Their job is not to build a hotel and golf course. Their job is to build a colony of rare plant species that are threatened by development of the 270-room hotel, 80 condominiums and 18-hole championship golf

As part of the development permit, Pebble Beach Co. agreed to restore 100 acres of sand dunes and provide a native species protection program at Spanish Bay.

So while the cement foundations are being poured outside, inside Guinon and Allen are growing beach peas, yellow sand verbena, the rare tidestroms lupine and about 30 other native plants.

In addition, the greenhouse north of the construction site is being used to grow 6,000 Monterey Pines and 2,500 Coastal Oaks to replace those removed for the project and its accompanying conveyor belt system that will haul sand the two miles from Sawmill Gulch to Spanish Bay.

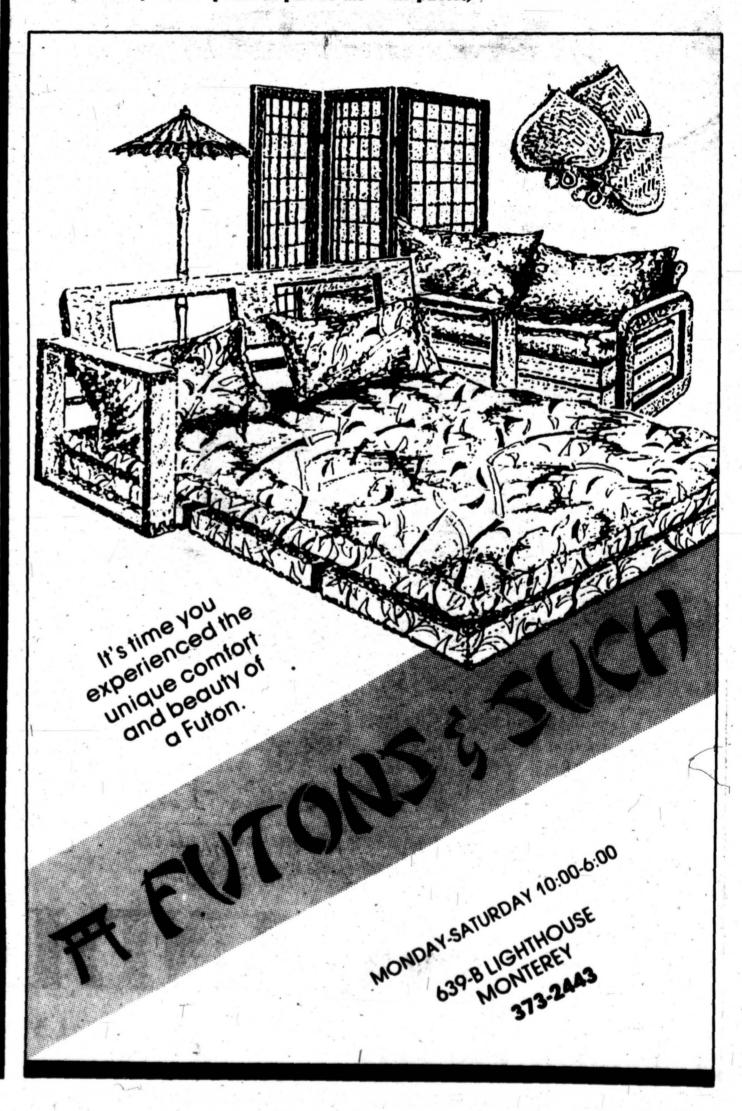

Many of the native plant species were collected on-site before construction began. The plants then are cared for in the special greenhouse and kept there until it's time to replant after construction.

But some of the plants are so rare that the consultants had to collect species in a 20-mile radius to ensure an adequate supply.

In addition, another 400 pounds of native plant seed will be hydro-seeded in the area in the hope that 70,000 native plants will eventually flourish.

After the hydro-seeding, Allen and Guinon will oversee spot planting throughout the golf course, creating tiny colonies of plants away from the gallery areas.

Two special riparian habitats outside of the golf course area also have been set aside to protect native species.

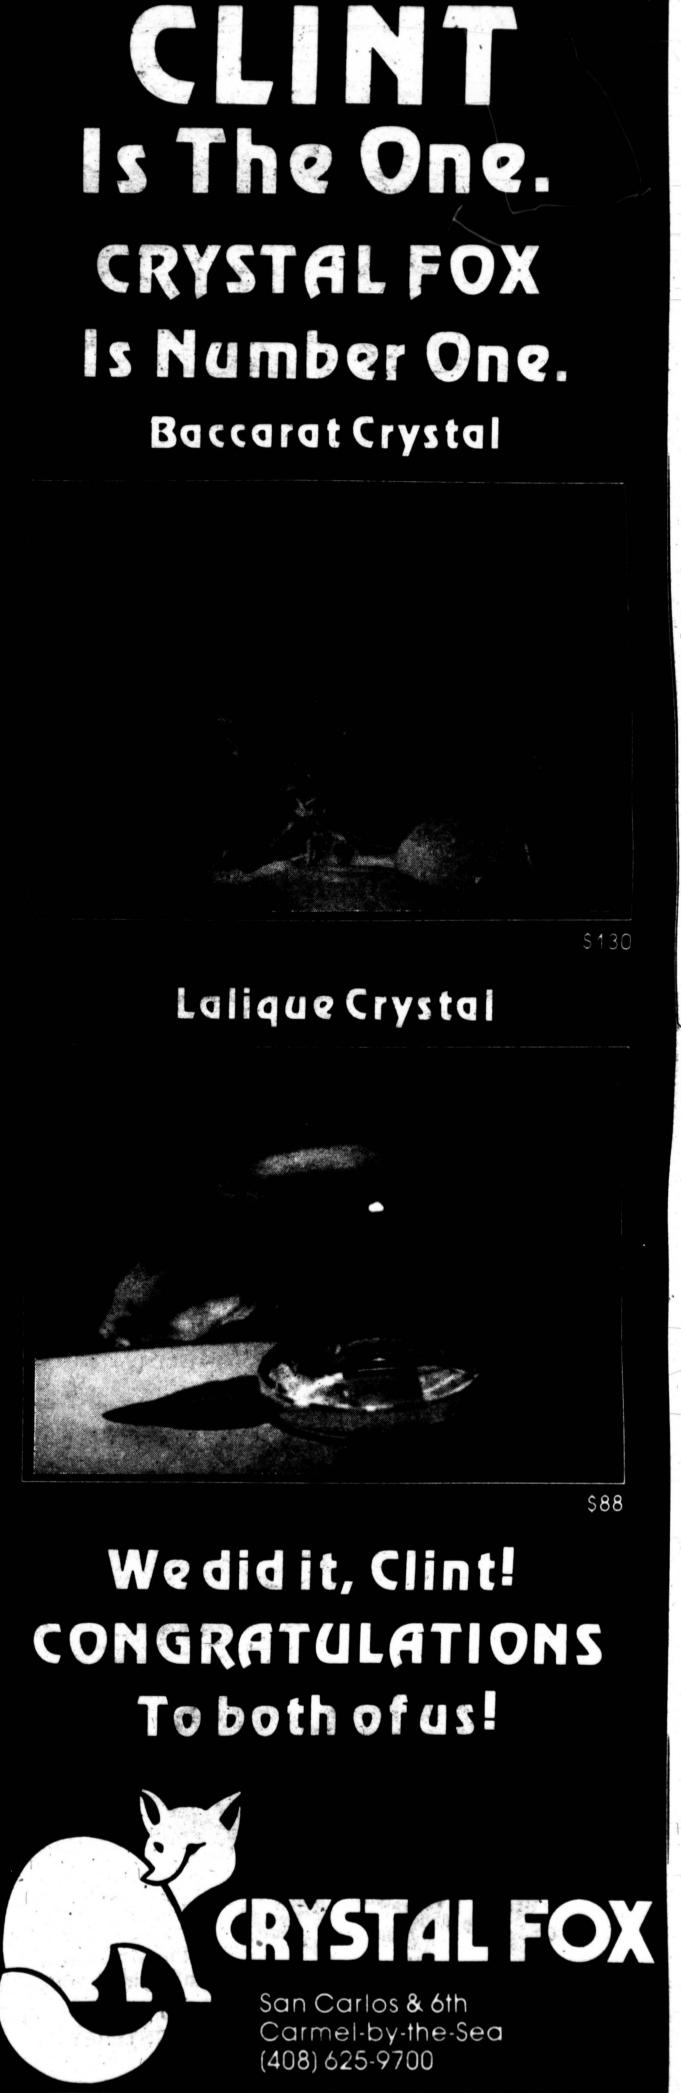

The experimental work Guinon and Allen have underway also will be published in professional journals.

New wall for Sunset Center

THE SOUTH wall of Sunset Center has been a growing headache for the city in its attempts to restore the facility. Reconstruction of the wall is part of phase one of the Sunset Center rehabilitation plan. Originally budgeted for $15,000, repairs to the wall now will cost about $20,000 because of the previously-unknown damage. As Building Inspector Tim Merony said, "This wall literally didn't exist there was so much dry rot and termite damage...It was like a disease, a cancer going through with nothing being done for 40 years." (Michael Gardner photo.)

Harrison Library board unveils new annex

NEW PLANS for the proposed Harrison Memorial Library annex were unveiled to the board of trustees in a special meeting April 7.

The new design calls for a 5,200 sq. ft. annex that will cost an estimated $600,000. A 20-space parking garage, to be separately funded by the city council, is included in the plans.

In attendance at the special meeting was Clint Eastwood, who promised to donate the necessary Santa Maria stone for the annex if the project is developed.

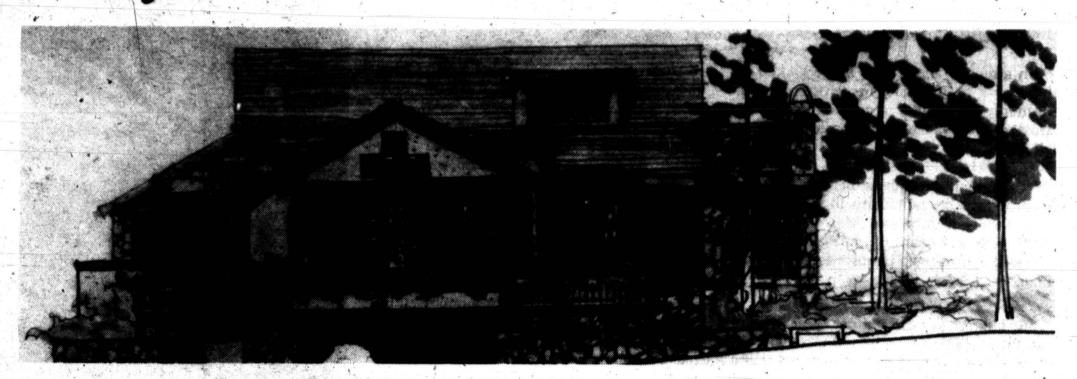

The plans may be refined slightly when trustees meet April 22, however, they did vote 4-1 to support the concept design. Tom Duffy discented because of concerns about the number of restrooms and the large amount of some work incorporated in the design.

The annex is planned for the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.

Design features are: «

• The building will have a residential look, with a chimney fronting the street. Roof dormers replace skylights. Materials include wood, stucco, tile shingles and Santa Maria

Annual patient care drive still going for Hospice

An annual Patient Care Drive kicked off this year's fund raising for Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, according to Robert Brower, president of the Hospice Board of Directors.

"Community members began to receive appeals to help terminally ill patients and their family members in March," he said. "This will be the start of an organized, goaloriented approach to Hospice fund raising in 1986."

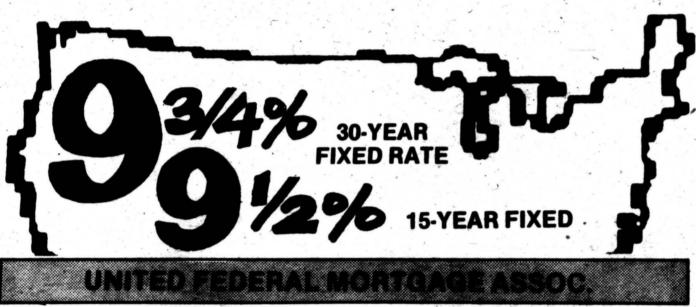

The board has formed a new development committee, Brower says, which will be responsible for setting fund-raising goals and implementing plans to reach them. In addition to launching the Patient Care Drive, the committee is currently in the process of recruiting members to serve on subcommittees involved in planned giving, special events and a local business campaign.

The Patient Care Drive has been established to provide direct care to the terminally ill and their family members, Brower said. "Our philosophy at Hospice is to provide care regardless of ability to pay, but many who come to us have exhausted their resources in fighting their disease, and most do not have insurance adequate to cover all Hospice costs."

Brower said that some Hospice patients have no Medicare benefits or private insurance, and about 35 percent of the average insured patient's costs are not reimbursed by insurance. "Like other hospices across the nation, about 50 percent of our patient care costs must be funded by community donations," he said. "The Patient Care Fund will help meet this need."

CMS music program

By FRANK LYNCH Carmel Middle School Principal

The music program at Carmel Middle School provides students with the opportunity to participate in band, orchestra, beginning lessons and a variety of ensembles.

The impetus for the middle school program begins with the fine instruction that is being done at the elementary schools under the direction of Bill Purdy and Sharon Jones. Students leaving Jones and Purdy come well prepared to further develop their skills with our instructor Karen King.

Karen King has been at CMS for five years. Since her arrival the program has grown steadily. At the present time, 100 students, who represent nearly 25 percent of the total student body, make up the grade level bands, the orchestra and the ensembles. In addition to the classroom instruction. King provides many opportunities for her students to perform. These performances take place during the regular school day when the band and/or orchestra conduct a formal concert for students at the middle school.

Performances also occur on three evenings during the school year. The evening performances are attended by parents, friends, students and staff.

The unsung heroes of our music program must be mentioned. The parents of our musicians, members of the districtwide music committee, district office personnel and the David and Lucille Packard Foundation staff have contributed both money and moral support throughout the years. Without the help of the above-mentioned people our program would not be the high caliber program that it

The music program at Carmel Middle School plays a vital role in the total education of our students. We are proud of its participants, its music instructor and of all of the people who contribute to its overall success.

Eastwood wants cooperation between city and schools

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CLINT EASTWOOD — still campaigning for mayor of Carmel when he made the talk — promised that if elected he will support more city cooperation with the schools in offering youth programs.

Eastwood told the local chapter of the Association of California School Administrators April 3 that although there are not many school-age children in Carmel, "that doesn't mean we really shouldn't spend the time and effort to make the programs right."

A product of Oakland public schools, the world-famous actor said he intends to support fund-raising efforts by the district.

"Win, lose or draw I want to make this commitment," he said. "I'm going to work with Bob (Supt. Robert Infelise) win or lose on this thing." (For election results, please see page 1.)

Eastwood, who at one time helped start a now-defunct youth gym at Sunset Center. said the city should be doing far more than it currently does for local youngsters.

"Things for kids seem to have gotten lost," he said. "Unfortunately that (the gym program) got shoved by the wayside."

(Two years ago the city and school district joined together to sponsor a recreation program, but there are no offerings for high school age youngsters. And the city provides no financial support to the Carmel Youth Center.)

Eastwood said "there has not been a great deal of emphasis by the present administration" on youth programs.

A plan for programs offered under some kind of joint powers group between the school district, city and youth center is worth exploring, Eastwood said.

"It would be a good idea I think. The coordination is not there. It would be nice if there was some sort of link-up," he said.

"It's the old one hand not knowing what the other hand is doing," Eastwood said.

Any program should be offered for all area youngsters and not just for those who live within the Carmel municipal limits, Eastwood believes.

"It shouldn't be limited to kids who live within one square mile...It's important to meet others from all walks of life."

Asked whether Eastwood would support the city taking over youth center operations when the lease agreement expires in 1989, he replied that it would be "an interesting idea."

However, he said it would be "preferable" to have a separate board operate independently. "It depends on how well this present board functions."

FOR THE kids - Clint Eastwood (center) met with school administrators and discussed what he would do to help local youth if he is elected mayor of Carmel. (See election results, page 1.) With Eastwood are: Dee Eastwood also would like to see the city financially help the youth center.

"I don't see why not," Eastwood said in response to a query whether he would support a city contribution to the youth center.

Dresser, vice principal of Carmel High School; and Bob Infelise, superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District. (Michael Gardner photo.)

"I would like to first try and encourage the private sector to work on it."

But Eastwood said that a city with a $2.4 million budget reserve should afford a grant to the youth center.

Legion Post 512 honors flag flyers

PATRIOTIC CITIZENS who fly the American flag every day will be honored by the local chapter of the American Legion.

Carmel American Legion Post 512 will honor citizens, businesses and organizations who fly the flag daily. Flag citations will be awarded at a ceremony scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Flag Day, Saturday, June 14 at the Carmel Legion Hall, Dolores Street near Eighth Avenue.

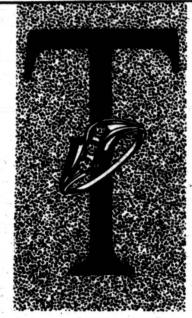

To be eligible for a citation a person must fly the flag daily at his home, business or organization in Carmel, lower and upper Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach, and south of Carmel, including the Big Sur area.

The city of Pacific Grove does not have an American Legion post, so the Carmel chapter has invited residences, businesses and organizations in that city to participate in the program.

This is the fourth time the local chapter has sponsored the program. Members of the community can also nominate others who express their patriotism by displaying the flag, according to Paul Artellan, flag display chairman.

Nominations can be made in writing to: Carmel American Legion Post No. 512, P.O. Box 512, Carmel 93921.

Is it over, yet?

IF WE can have the Oscars, Emmys, Tonys and Cleos, why not the Coneys?

That's what I thought to myself, trying to come up with something witty for a column that has to be written before the major news breaks, but is read after everyone from Carmel to Australia already knows what happened.

Thus, we give birth to the Coneys, a onetime award for all of you candidates who braved the media and volunteered your time to seek public office while the rest preferred to be couch potatos and complainers rather than activists and doers.

• Best campaign: There is no doubt Clint

Eastwood had the most efficent, well-run campaign. And why not? With $35,000 already spent, Eastwood could well afford the best adviser, Sue Hutchinson, a professional from Southern California. Eastwood tirelessly hit the streets, sometimes appearing at three teas and a luncheon in one day. It is that kind of one-on-one grassroots campaigning that negated the sometimes negative image projected by his movie star status.

• Worst campaign: Mayor Charlotte Townsend wins this Coney, basically because of her often frazzled appearance and short remarks. She wisely opened her doors to the media at the beginning to get her points across, but failed to put a halt to it when the real circus moved into town. That played into Eastwood's hands, who often chastized her for talking to the media, while he shied away. She should never have tried to paint Eastwood as the big bad developer, a move that backfired on her. A wiser approach would have been to stick to her record, rather than being on the defensive. The hastily-called voter registration fraud press conference made her seem like the one pressing the charges. She should have refused comment and shooed the media to the League of Women Voters.

• Best lines: Hands down to Paul Laub, who dropped out, much to the chagrin of the late-arriving media hungry for good quotes.

One of my personal favorites was when he talked about the time Carmel police confiscated his Christmas tree lights for being up too early. Laub said, "How did they know be wasn't celebrating Hanukkah?"

• Most gained: Tim Grady and the Environmentalist Party, whose ideals appeared internationally thanks to Eastwood's candidacy. Otherwise, it would have been page 37 even in some of the local papers for Grady.

• Best prospect: Bruce Roberts, who

DWAINE BOARD, a member of the 1984 World Champion S.F. 49ers, was on hand to commemorate opening day for the 1985 Carmel Youth Baseball season. This year, the first pitches of 1986 will be tossed out by two members of the 1985 Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears, Ron Rivera and Ken Margerum.

Bad News Chicago Bears on hand for Carmel opener

Two MEMBERS of the world champion Chicago Bears will swap footballs for baseballs Saturday, April 19 to open the Carmel Youth Baseball season.

On hand to throw out ceremonial first pitches and sign autographs will be Bears' wide receiver Ken Margerum and linebacker Ron Rivera, who prepped at Seaside High School.

Opening day activities will begin with the annual pancake breakfast at 8 a.m. on the Rio Road field near Carmel Mission. The $3 breakfast includes pancakes, sausage, a fruit and coffee or milk.

The breakfast is a major fund raiser for youth baseball.

Opening day ceremonies will begin at 10 a.m. with an invocation and singing of the national anthem by Monterey County's "singing sheriff," Pat Duval.

Opening day will be dedicated to Mike Prieto, who will retire after many years of serving youth baseball as equipment manager, coach and mechanic.

After the ceremonies, the youth baseball teams will play games and a special raffle is to be conducted during the day.

For a while it seemed that Youth Baseball would have to postpone or cancel the season because of its problems finding insurance.

League President Jerry Pullen said a binder has been signed that will allow play to begin. The insurance for the season is expected to dramatically increase to $3,000 to $4,000, he said.

For more information, contact Pullen at 625-1091 or Tracey Johnson at 624-5286.

BEHIND THE LINES BY MICHAEL GARDNER

jumped into the mayoral fray only to withdraw when Eastwood decided to run. Look for Roberts to run for city council in two years.

• Most likely to join an advisory agency: Toss-up between Roberts and council candidate Don Lampson, if he wants. Lampson wowed them with his homespun philosophy, common sense thinking and humor, something the city boards and commissions have lacked over the past few years.

• Fastest talker: Tom May, the council candidate who proved he can talk at 78 rpm although recorded at 33 rpm during the last half-minute of his statement at a council forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

• Quietest candidate: A tie between council hopefuls Elinor Laiolo and Robert Weber, who were a journalist's nightmare with their one-word answers.

• Best coverage: Besides yours truly, of course, the San Jose Mercury's Tim Larimer did an outstanding job covering ALL of the candidates fairly. He also scooped the local press on the Medflys' Don't Mess With the Mayor recording and first broke the story of how much money Eastwood spent investigating his chances. Larimer's lead on Laub, comparing him to a younger brother wanting to tag along with older siblings Eastwood and Townsend, was one of the best. US magazine and writer Jeff Silverman carried the best feature article by a magazine, followed closely by Time.

• Worst story: The San Jose Mercury's West insert was filled with Dirty Harry cliches months into the election and boring first-person asides. It even published a photograph of Eastwood carrying babies.

Yawn.

• Worst gaffe: To Eastwood and his "shut your face" remark. Eastwood, who preaches friendliness and treating adversaries politely, told Townsend's campaign manager, Bob Irvine, to "shut your face" during a dispute between Irvine and Clyde Sturges, an Eastwood backer. Hope Eastwood doesn't slip back into his Dirty Harry role when negotiating for Mission Ranch.

• Classiest move: Eastwood, early in the campaign met with school Supt. Robert Infelise, promising to participate in some fundraising activity. However, Eastwood swore Infelise to secrecy, saying he didn't want it leaked just so that he would get some votes. Eastwood also has quietly called merchants making a killing off "Eastwood for Mayor" paraphernalia, politely requesting that some proceeds be forwarded to the Carmel Youth Center.

• Quickest about face: To Grady, who told Rotarians that he wasn't talking to the outside press because he allegedly had been censored and taken out of context. Minutes after those comments, Grady excused himself and was seen outside talking to the dozens of reporters who were barred from the Rotary luncheon.

IS IT REALLY OVER

Just when you thought it was safe to go back on the streets again, we find...Doris Day?

A prankster, or a very early campaigner, stapled "Doris Day for mayor" placards throughout downtown Carmel last Saturday night.

Thank goodness Doris lives in the county, otherwise could you see the media attention with a Doris Day-Clint Eastwood mayoral matchup in 1988?

Water management district seeking funding sources

POTABLE WATER should not be used as a benefit for property owners in an assessment district, The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board has determined.

The board is investigating ways to form a special assessment district for funding a water reclamation plant. Assessed property owners must received a benefit in exchange for liens against their lands.

The board instructed district staff during a special meeting April 3 to prepare "findings" that detailed why using potable water is unacceptable as a dedicated benefit to the assessed properties.

The staff was also told to continue investigating other means of funding. The findings will be presented to the board 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 14 at Monterey City Council Chambers.

The assessment district is to fund a 1.3 million gallon of sewage per day water reclamation project at the Carmel Sanitary District. The reclaimed water would be used to irrigate Pebble Beach golf courses, owned primarily by Pebble Beach Co. and Northern California Golf Association. The project is estimated to cost approximately $11 million to build and a total of $1.3 million a year to

To form an assessment district, properties within that district must receive a benefit or service exclusive to them and directly related to the project the charges are imposed for. A district does not have to be one continuous area of land, said Dave Laredo, water district

The assessed lands would have the rights to all potable water released from golf course irrigation by the use of reclaimed water.

The board decided that use of reclaimed water would be defined as the benefit property owners would receive and not the potable water freed by the use of reclaimed water for irrigation. Reclaimed water would provide drought protection for the golf courses, first to have their water supply cut in time of rationing during a water shortage, said Board Chairman Dick Heuer.

A report by Frank Dryden on peninsula water reclamation projects suggested that potable water be used as a benefit to form a special assessment district.

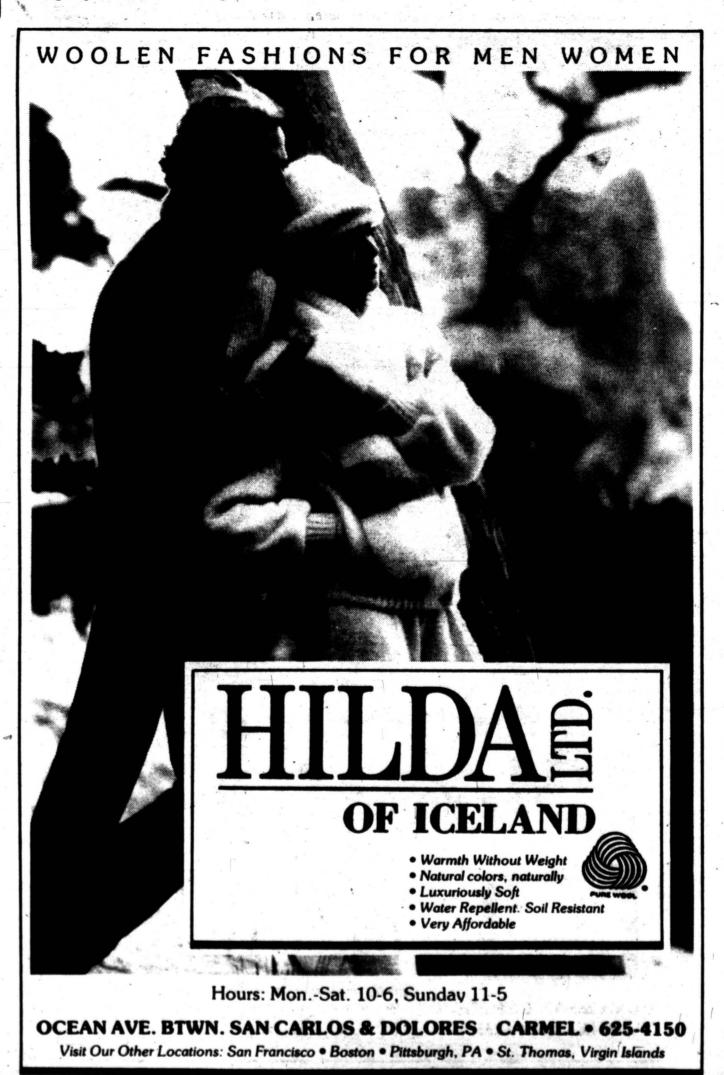

Heuer said in the special meeting that if potable water is used as a benefit, the district would lose a substantial amount of funds from connection charges. Property owners cannot be charged twice for water.

Board Member and County Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman objected to the use of potable water because the landowners willing to assess their property would do so because their projects are last in line for water allocations. Those projects are the least desired by the county, Strasser Kauffman

An assessment district formed by Pebble Beach Community Services District to fund a 600,000 gallon per day water reclamation plant in Del Monte Forest was disbanded in March by PBCSD. The district, called Zone A, incorporated the proposed Pebble Beach Company Spanish Bay resort and Poppy Hills golf course. Pebble Beach disbanded the assessment district and abandoned its project in March at the request of Pebble Beach Co., the primary property owner within the zone.

Zone A was formed with a benefit to the property owners of increased sewage capacity. At the time Zone A was formed, Carmel Sanitary District did not have the capacity to provide sewage treatment for the planned developments, a major factor in stopping the projects. Pebble Beach has no treatment plant of its own, so its sewage is processed through CSD.

However, since the zone was formed, CSD has sufficiently increased its capacity to handle the additional output from Spanish Bay and Poppy Hills, therefore increased sewage capacity can no longer be used as a legal basis for forming an assessment district.

CARMEL VOICE BY SAM SALERNO

Aloha from Lahaina

WHEN YOU read this, we trust the election results will be as follows: Eastwood, Fischer and Laiolo. This has been the consensus of all those we've quizzed around town during the past month or so.

HERE AND THERE

Dave Frishman and his lovely wife Ellie, in town from Boston to relax prior to a two-week skull session in Los Angeles as they prepare to open a Pip Printing franchise in Cambridge, Mass. Dave was former owner of Carmel Health Food Store on San Carlos. Ellie is a head shrink.

That handsome fellow seen driving the black limo around town is Hans Munck, who told me over coffee at Em Le's that he's having the time of his life with his new avocation. Munck describes himself as an entrepreneur who finds pride in what he does as owner of Your Maitre d', a catering and limousine service. He's an upper to be around and bubbles with enthusiasm. Don't know if it's true but when he left home his dad said to his mom, "Look Mom, no Hans!"

Randi Harmon, cute bartender at the Rio Grill, beaming about the results of hubby Randi's language studies at the Institute of Foreign Studies. He's a German major and happy with his progress. Vo ist Randi, huete abend?

ON THE WAY TO HAWAII

'Heard a comment from Artie Shaw at the San Francisco Film Festival where he was honored for his music. When asked by a reporter what he thought of marriage, Shaw replied, "I know nothing of marriage, but I'm an expert on divorce!"

With all the bad news about flying, there is some good news. Hawaiian Airlines makes it possible for you to see (on wide screen) the takeoff and landing of their flights to Hawaii...great innovation and gives the passenger a feeling of flying the airplane.

ALL ABOUT HAWAII

If you're into golf, be sure to have plenty of cash or travelers checks on hand. Wailea at Maui is $160 for two with cart...a reduction if you stay at their hotel. Kapalua is a little less expensive. Not bad when you consider Pebble Beach is $125 a head.

Speaking of Kapalua, I played golf (I use the term loosely) with Dick McClean of Carmel and Mark Rolfing, who is the owner of Kapalua and originator of the Kapalua Open. Dick is the tournament director at Kapalua. Their parents still reside in Carmel and Pebble Beach. Dick, incidentally, eagled the eighth hole of the Village Course. The eighth measures 451 yards and Dick used a driver and five iron. He still hits it with the best of them. He and Mark have many irons in the fire...sports packages which will be seen on national television. Good luck, guys!

PLACES TO DINE

At Lahaina, the Greenthums is a must. Owners are Lee and Christine Hayden. They serve only the freshest homemade foods. Try their breakfast of buckwheat hotcakes and Kona coffee, served with fresh slices of pineapple. It's a beautiful dining experience on the decks of Lahaina's oldest fishing house and their prices are realistic for this vacation spot. Stay away from Pineapple Hill at Kapalua. Food is average and the portions are small. Better think twice before you order a "Viscious Virgin" at the Ocean House in Lahaina. It contains oodles of rum and liqueurs, and unless you have a strong constitution, it'll lay you flat on your back.

If you love whales, you'll love the paintings of Don McMichael, expert whale painter. His one-man show took place at the Village Gallery, Lahaina. He ranks as one of the finest painters of whales in the world. For lovers of Dali, Center Art Galleries of Hawaii was showing the world's largest and most exciting collection of original paints and graphic work of Salvador Dali.

Don't miss the Whaler, Ltd., a unique shop at Lahaina that has all the whale knickknacks imaginable. Everything nautical in a whale theme, whale artifacts, etc. Very Carmelish!

The sports pages of the Honolulu Advertiser had a story on one of our locals. It read, "Rangers' Incaviglia a Legend Before His Time." Milt Gus's column carried the story of the local debates with Eastwood and Townsend on KSBW-TV.

It's great to get away for a while, but it's always a better feeling to come back to beautiful Carmel.

Stay healthy!

Hyatt's culinary creations

Once a month Executive Chef Chris Sprecher, of the Hyatt Regency Monterey, invites selected area leaders to dine at the Hyatt — in his kitchen. The gathering is a "Chef's Table" affair and allows Chef Sprecher and his staff to display their talents for a small, intimate group.

Receiving an invitation to the two-hour Chef's Table is considered an honor, as only five guests are invited monthly. The guest list is designed to bring a cross-section of Monterey personalities together who may not ordinarily meet, such as business executives, government and civic leaders or media.

Guests wear Chef's Table aprons and chef hats, sit at an elegant table in the kitchen and are served by the maitre'd. Guests are invited to keep the apron and hat as a memento. Each course of the luncheon, from the unique hors d'oeuvres to the fresh dessert, is explained in detail by the chef. Many guests ask for his recipes but learn the meal is created purely from his imagination.

Sprecher has been with Hyatt Hotels for 15 years, seven at the Hyatt Monterey. Originally from Switzerland, he has a flair for sauces and an impeccable style of presentation acquired from years of work in fine European hotels.

The Chef's Table concept originated to give Hyatt Hotels' executive chefs an opportunity to create, test and review new cooking ideas and recipes with their apprentices. The idea has expanded to a luncheon event with the chef's special guests, but the spotlight remains on his talents and culinary creations.

FUN FUND RAISER FOR AFS

The Carmel Chapter of the American Field Service (AFS) will be celebrating its 25-year anniversary with a fun, fundraising event Thursday, April 17.

AFS was founded in 1914 as a volunteer ambulance corps characters by staging a sold-out "Hookers Ball" at Mission Above is Allen (center) with Pat Sippel and Merv Sutton. Ranch on April Fool's Day. The gala was a successful fund with the French armies. After World Wars I and II, the drivers of both wars felt there was an even greater need for strengthening the bonds among nations, so in 1947 they reestablished the scholarship program and 52 students from 11 countries were brought to the United States. This was so successful that it was decided to devote the entire program to young people. Through the years AFS has expanded to include more than 85 countries and has added other programs for young people and adults including a language study program and teacher exchange program.

The Carmel Chapter was founded in 1953 and except for an inactive period from 1960-1966, has sent many students abroad. Since 1967 46 Carmel High School students have gone abroad during the one-year or summer programs. Also, since that time, 28 AFS foreign students have attended Carmel High School, hosted by Carmel families.

This year the Carmel Chapter is hosting Marc Grandjean from Montana, Switzerland, who is living with Steve and Shirley Champion and their son Gilbert; and Ann-Sophie Lehman, from Bremen, West Germany, who is living with Larry and Gina Welch and their daughters Sarah and Alicia. Another AFS student is attending Robert Louis Stevenson School. He is Andrea (Andy) Valente from Merano, Italy, living with Jerry and Karen Pullen and their daughters Janine and Renee. All families are active in AFS activities and the AFS students participate in school and community life. All are very good students, and Ann-Sophie was named one of Carmel High School's students of the month. They will be returning to their homes in early July.

The fund-raising event will be held at California's First Theater in Monterey. A light buffet will begin at 6:30 p.m. followed by an exciting performance where you can hiss the villain and cheer the hero at 8 p.m. A donation of $20 per adult or $15 per student reserves a spot for you on this funfilled night. Seating is limited. Reservations must be received by April 12. For more information about AFS or this exciting evening, write to AFS-Carmel Chapter, P.O. Box 3674.

JUDICIAL CANDIDATES AND "DEEP POCKETS"

Members and guests of Carmel Republican Women's Club will enjoy an informative program and enjoyable luncheon at the Carmel Valley Country Club Thursday, April 10.

Four municipal court candidates will be featured along with a "deep pockets" discussion, regarding the insurance claim issue.

The Honorable Stephen A. Sillman, Municipal Court judge; Mr. Donald Booles, a King City attorney; Mr. Brian Gill, a Pacific Grove attorney; and Mr. Robert Moody, a deputy district attorney, will address the group.

Candidates will give seven-minute presentations followed by questions and answers.

A no-host cocktail hour will begin at 11:30 a.m., followed by luncheon at 12 noon and the program at 1 p.m.

Luncheon will consist of "Tomato Crown" served with chicken salad, ice cream sundaes and beverages. Price is $12.50 per person.

Reservations should be made by calling Mrs. George Champion at 624-1685.

School district prepares for major shakeup

By MICHAEL GARDNER

WHAT IS expected to be a major shakeup in the Carmel Unified School District administration will be unveiled April 15.

SUPT. BOB Infelise will unveil an administrative reshuffling plan for the Carmel Unified School District April 15.

That is when the board of education meets in a special session to discuss what Robert Infelise calls "administrative staffing needs" for 1986-87.

The board will review Infelise's proposals in the public meeting that will begin at a special time, 5 p.m., in the Carmel Middle School library.

No action is expected on Infelise's proposal; a final decision is scheduled for the April 29 school board meeting.

Also on the agenda next week is a decision on how to replace board President Doyle Clayton, who resigned effective April 2.

Trustees have two options: call a special election or appoint a new board member from the community.

When Joan Cathey resigned, the former board did appoint James Yates from among the community rather than call a special election.

On the administrative shuffle issue, Infelise said he could not reveal details of the plan until after he discusses personnel assignments with the board in a closed-door session.

It is anticipated that Infelise will ask for one additional administrative position — that one to fill the vacancy left when former Director of Instruction Rich Hawkins resigned.

There is much sentiment in the district that a fulltime curriculum-oriented administrator is needed, especially to fill the long-range goals of a board that has said publicly it wants an integrated kindergarten through eighth-grade pro-

To understand what may occur, one must examine how the Carmel Unified School District administration has been in a constant state of flux since Oct. 8. 1984.

That is the day William Rand resigned as superintendent amidst controversy and pressure from the board's threemember majority of Susan Bromfield, Robert Fenton and Yates.

Hawkins was selected to "hold down the fort" — so to speak — while trustees launched a nationwide search for a new superintendent.

Just weeks after Infelise was hired, the three board member majority of Yates, Fenton and Bromfield was recalled and replaced by Hilton Bialek, Claudia Daniels and Pat Herro.

Hawkins immediately asked for a oneyear leave of absence and Infelise held the position open until Hawkins earlier this year informed the district that he would not return.

IT IS Hawkins' position that is to be filled, but the question of how, who and the exact responsibilities is what Infelise will answer next week.

Infelise apparently has no need for a budget officer; that job was filled by Vance Baldwin, who replaced Ed Miyasaki after Infelise came on board.

Another administrative position to be filled is that of Carmel High school prinicipal - and it is that vacancy which is expected to lead to further reorganization in the district.

Since Infelise has said that the only new administrator to be hired will fill the CHS principalship, it can be assumed that the superintendent plas to shuffle his other administrators.

It is a complicated procedure; with several players to consider.

Odd man out right now is Karl Pallastrini, currently the vice principal at the middle school.

Pallastrini assumed those duties when Dee Dresser moved to the high school, where she is vice principal under Joe Feldeisen, currently the principal.

But Feldeisen resigned and will resume his old job as CHS vice principal. Under the domino effect, Dresser moves back to the middle school and Pallastrini is left without an assignment.

Pallastrini does have an agreement with the Pacific Grove school district, which states he may return as a teacher. But, Pallastrini has indicated that he prefers Carmel and there is support in the community to keep him working in the Carmel district.

COUNCIL ON ALCOHOLISM REOPENS OFFICE

The National Council on Alcoholism, Monterey County has reopened its office in Monterey and elected a new board of directors headed by Helen Swanston of Salinas as president.

Recently council members met at the new headquarters for the 1986 annual meeting to elect ten new members to the board, including Superior Court Judge John Anton, Eugene Eldredge, M.D., Jeremy Estabrooks of KDON, the Rev.

Robert Fosse, Devin McGilloway, Lloyd Parker of the Recovery Center, George Olivas Staub of Brightside-ACT, Lynn Storey, Ben Tucker, KMST and Nick Ventimiglia, Bank of Salinas.

Ventimiglia was elected treasurer, Storey secretary and James G. Schwefel, Salinas attorney, vice-president.

Other members of the board continuing in office include Martin Dodd of Sun Street Centers; Jo Inman, R.N., of Door to Hope; educator Marie Kassing; Joan Mortensen of Beacon House; Mary C. Ross and Swanston.

A board headed by Ross has been operating without an office for a number of years awaiting the strategic time to reactivate its educational and preventive services in Monterey County.

That time came, according to Ross, when funding cuts in the county reduced the budgets for education of tax-supported alcoholism agencies.

At the same time, she said, Leonard K. Firestone of Pebble Beach, who is on the national board, offered the council an office in Monterey at 666 Camino Aguajito.

The office will be open to the public offering information, educational materials and special programs for action beginning May 1 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. The telphone number is 372-4175.

MONTEREY POLICE DETECTIVES TO SPEAK

Dave Purvis and Dave Junkin, detectives from the Crime Prevention Unit of the Monterey Police Department, will speak to the Retired Public Employees' Association (RPEA), Chapter 67, Friday, April 11. The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in the Community Room of the Monterey City Library.

Purvis and Junkin will coordinate their program which will include crime prevention, changes in our society, and methods of coping in today's world.

The program is free and open to the public.

WRIGHT FUNDRAISER PLANNED

Kym Wright, who will be joining the Up With People program later this year, will sponsor a dessert fundraiser to help defray the $6,600 cost.

The dessert and coffee is planned for 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 16 at the Carmel Plaza Cafe. Owner Ken Spilfogel is donating coffee and use of the restaurant as his contribution.

Cost of the dessert will be $10.

Wright, lifetime Carmel resident and daughter of Councilman James and Beth Wright, is asking local merchants to help provide desserts.

For more information, contact her at 624-2040 in the daytime.

WESTERNERS TO HEAR LAGORIO

Elmer Lagorio of Carmel, an expert on trains and railroads, will speak to the Monterey County Corral of Westerners at 8 p.m. Monday, April 14 at St. John's Parish Hall in Monterey. His subject will be "The Monterey and Salinas Valley Railroad." The meeting is free and open to the public. A potluck dinner precedes the presentation at 7 p.m. For more information call 624-4490.

USINESS BEAT BYNANCYHILLS

Hello, there!

DID WE all survive this week's goings on? Have a good time? Is everybody happy with the election results? If not, write Michael Gardner or Mac McDonald. They'd just love to hear about it.

ALL LOCKED-UP

What do you use almost every day, carry with you and when you lose it turns you it a raving gymnast?

Keys, of course. It's a lucky person (but culturally deprived, in my opinion) who has never challenged his or her mental and physical abilities by figuring out how to get into your own home when locked out or how to get to that all-important appointment without a car. We won't even discuss the interesting positions we get into while looking for those little magic metal door openers and car starters.

When crawling around on all fours and rummaging through garbage fails, and your keys appear to have gone where you wish your bills would, that's when you need the services of a Jefferson Crichton of Carmel Locksmith.

Soon, however, if you look for Crichton where he's been for 11 years (on the corner of Junipero and Fifth avenues), you might think he's gone to the same place your keys went. In middle to late April, Crichton will move his shop to the west side of Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. He needed more room because Crichton has a lot more than keys in his place.

In fact, he said most of his business comes from security systems. Installing deadbolts in both residential and commercial properties has been the largest part of his business, Crichton said.

Crichton also wants to expand the retail side of his business, mainly carry more safes — which he installs — and do some engraving of "small things like monogrammed keys." The new location is five times the size of where he is now, he added.

Space has been a problem for Crichton because of another problem in this town — commercial rents.

"If I had the size I needed all these years, I would have had to pay $2,000 a month," he said. It was pure luck that his new place became available. (It's in the same courtyard as Holiday Hutch and the building is owned by Mel Kline.)

"Carmel has slowly but surely weeded out most of the service businesses;" he said.

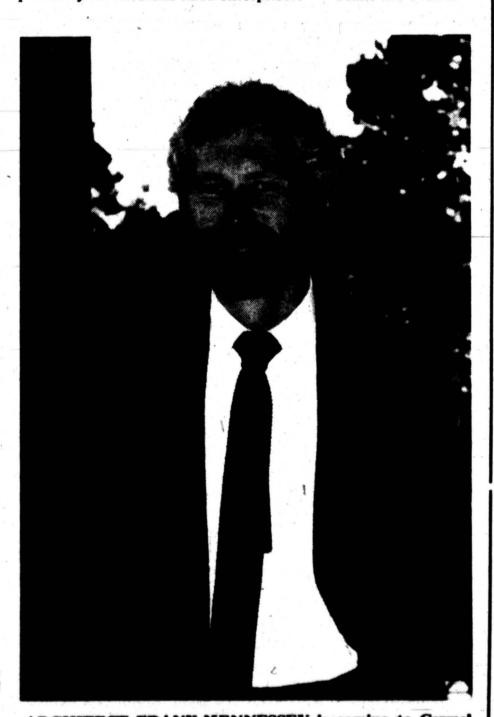

The rising value of property had pushed the rents up beyond what most service businesses can afford, Crichton observed.

Tourist do form a part of his businesses, locking themselves out of cars and what not, Crichton said, but it isn't a large part of it.

work as some of the functions she can cover.

"I also do trouble-shooting for businesses having difficulty," Emerson said. "A lot of my work is analysis. I look at how the business has fallen behind."

One of the reasons Emerson said she can handle everything from marketing to auditing is that she has an interest in both numbers and people. A bachelor's degree in engineering and social sciences, plus working with computers, Emerson said helped prepare her to deal with all kinds of problems.

Not just a consultant, Emerson said she backs up what she does by putting her ideas to work.

"It's a full-cycle service," she said.

FOR ANGLOPHILES AND OTHERS

The soon-to-arrive English restaurant, Sticky Wicket, on Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues (where La Cochon Laque used to be), will have something Americans like a lot. Booths.

I'm a booth fan. A real sprawler when I relax with my friends, I've often solved the world's problems while safely lounging in a restaurant booth. None of this prim and proper little-chair sitting for me. A Westerner, I'm used to a lot of space. "Oh, give me a home ..." and all that. A child of modern conveniences, I like my comforts. Don't ask me to build Spartan character while nibbling on a croissant.

Of course, there will be more than a place to sit (and there are table and chairs for those of a less hedonistic nature). Owner Dennis Rowedder, a long-time Carmel personality who hails from England, is ready to do his former Sticky Wicket English tea room on Ocean Avenue one better. He said he might even call it Sticky Wicket - Mark II.

Managers Patrick and Hilda Martin (he's English) said the restaurant will serve lunch, dinner and an afternoon tea complete with clotted cream from Devon. A little bit of old England with a Tudor decor and antiques on the walls. Rowedder said that they hope to start serving breakfast later Rowedder and Martin both said that the restaurant should be open April 14 or 15.

Emerson has opened Coastal Business Service in the former (Nancy Hills photo.)

 Patricia Rowedder has her own doings to concentrate on. She's selling Rowedder of Carmel, her shoe store on the corner of Monte Verde Street and Ocean Avenue. New owners, according to Dennis Rowedder, will be Thomas Testa and Maurice Himy. Rowedder said they plan to change it from a shoe store to a "quality men's and women's apparel store." The sale will be final, if there are no problems with the city, around May 1, Rowedder said.

ZANTMAN GALLERIES CHANGES HANDS

THE FORMER San Francisco Federal Savings and Loan location of Pastabilities. Coastal Business Service, Emerson building on Junipero Avenue has a new tenant. Susan said, will help out in any way a business needs assistance.

> Zantman Art Galleries, Ltd., a fixture in Carmel for the past 20 years, has changed hands from founder Johan Zantman. Zantman has three locations, two on Sixth Avenue in Carmel and one in Palm Desert.

> Zantman Galleries has become a part of Huish Industries from Salt Lake City, explained Steven Huish. Huish is a vice president of the company and is moving to the peninsula from Salt Lake City to run the galleries. Huish Industries is a holding company that owns the recently aguired Zantman Art Galleries stock; Huish Distributing, a wholesale distribution company of Whirlpool and Zenith appliances; and Huish Manufacturing, makers of laundry and dishwasher soap. The Zantman Art Galleries is the company's first investment in the art industry.

> Steven Huish explained that his parents have been clients of Zantman Galleries for some time and when the opportunity came up to move to Carmel and run the gallery, he was more than happy to do it. He is looking forward to the change.

"I'm used to a much more structured business and spent a number of years in advertising and sales," Huish said. "I see my position in the gallery as getting more involved in promotional activity."

The Zantmans will stay with the gallery to advise and ease Huish into the art businesses.

Zantman said he started the gallery on the peninsula 27 years ago, after working in the film industry. The first location was in Monterey at Hidden Village. In 1962, they moved into

"There were only four galleries, as I remember, in Carmel at that time," Zantman mused.

The first thing the gallery sold, ironically, was a not a painting but a Dutch clock.

Since then, the galleries have grown, though only 5 percent of his clientele are Carmel locals, Zantman said. Zantman said he and his wife, Trucia, decided to sell the stock because they are "not getting any younger and started thinking about what if something happened to me or her." What would become of the gallery concerned him.

In a letter to the artists the gallery shows, — about 20 to 30 regulars and 50 or 60 in total - Zantman said, "We shall now have the opportunity to train young, intellegent, enthusiastic and financially involved people...

"It gives us great piece of mind," he explained.

Huish said that they were looking into opening more galleries and do plan to have a showing in Salt Lake City.

FROM THE GROUND UP

I like the Pantiles Court on Dolores Street behind Em Le's. It's one of those little fjords in Carmel that has that patina of age. A nice, cozy place to have one's office.

Hopefully, architect Frank Hennessy feels that way too, because that's where he has chosen to settle in as Hennessy Associates.

This is Hennessy's first permanant office since leaving the Monterey architectural firm of Hall, Goodhue, Haisley and Barker last June. Hennessy said he was in charge of design at the firm, a position that garnered him and the firm three awards from American Institute of Architecture in 1980. The awards were for the Moss Landing Marine Observatory, the Monterey Institute of Research in Astronomy on Chews Ridge in Monterey and the gymnasium and chapel for York School.

Just because he hasn't had an office doesn't mean Hennessy's been loafing around since he left the firm. He said he's been been doing a lot of work overseas in places like Japan, Saudi Arabia and China.

What he designs, Hennessy said, depends on what he is designing for." "I don't think I bring a specific style to a project as much as an approach. I try to design a building that is appropriate to the site and surroundings."

Hennessy said he also received a great deal of experience in land planning at Hall, Goodhue, Haisley and Barker. The firm does a lot of large tract projects, he said, where he would master plan large tracts of land. It was good experience, Hennessy added.

BATTLE OF BALLOTS DUE NEXT TUESDAY IN CARMEL ELECTION

Next Tuesday is the big day, and it is practically all over now, except the shouting and the casting of the votes, which after all is what tells the tale. Carmel's municipal election appears to be rather a hotter battle this year than was the one two years ago, when a total of 609 votes were cast. This year there are 1,205 Carmelites registered to vote, but it remains to be seen whether more than half that number go to the polls.

PARALLEL PARKING PART OF PRICE FOR OCEAN AVE. PROJECT

When the sound and fury of the current street work has passed on Ocean Avenue, there will be a new problem to contend with: parallel parking.

A parallel parking requirement is part of the agreement between the city and the state, which is paying for the greater portion of the present street work from gas tax funds.

Word of the new parking arrangement has already brought a storm of protest around the head of Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, who wants it known "the police department has nothing to do with it!"

Parallel parking will go into effect along the four blocks of the Ocean Avenue shopping area, from Junipero to Monte Verde, as soon as the present project is completed. The new arrangement will mean loss of three or four parking spaces in each block, Klaumann noted.

April 8, 1976 MINI-BUS SYSTEM FOR CARMEL?

After being talked about for years, a minibus system for Carmel may be on the verge of becoming a reality.

Two proposals for establishing a casual, inexpensive inter-city bus system for Carmel will be presented at next week's city council meeting — one by Monterey Peninsula Transit (MPT) and one by Myles Williams, formerly of Carmel Bay Motoring Company.

Both systems would cover the residential and business district of Carmel every hour, so that everyone within the city would be only a block or two away from a bus ride. The buses themselves would be small, carrying 15 to 20 passengers each.

FORESTRY COMMISSION FAVORS A PARK AT PICCADILLY SITE

The Carmel Forestry Commission wants a public park at the Piccadilly Nursery site on Dolores.

The commission last week voted 4-0 in favor of developing Piccadilly as a park. Commissioner Bob Evans abstained because he owns property across the street.

City Administrator Doug Peterson requested advice from the commission on the proposal.

City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio said the plans offered by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club for a park at the site "are certainly worthwhile."

However, it appeared any proposals for restrooms in the park would be opposed by the commission.

River School registration opens

Registration for kindergarten enrollment at Carmel River School is now underway.

Enrollment for the September 1986 term is at the school office, Monte Verde Street and 15th Avenue, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Copies of a birth certificate and immunization records must be brought to register. To enroll, a child must be five years old by Dec.

Award winning logo design

ERICA RADON, a Carmel High School senior, is the talented winner of the Carmel Youth Center logo contest. Radon, whose logo was chosen from among numerous entries, was honored with a $100 savings bond and a one-year membership in the center. Presenting the award March 19 was board member Richard Muniz, who donated the $100 savings bond. He also donated the $50 bond awarded to second-place winner Sarah Welch of Carmel Valley. Third-place tie went to Michael Maloney and James Winters. They each received a three-year membership to the center. New board officers recently elected are: Ron Faia, president; Deanna Cotton, vice president; Cathleen Connell, secretary; and Gerry Byrne, treasurer.

Toll-free lines open for voters

Secretary of State March Fong Eu said that the statewide toll-free telephone lines dedicated to voter registration card requests are again in service for the 1986 elections.

The numbers — 800 345-VOTE (345-8683) and 800 345-8083 — will be in operation until May 5, the close of registration for the June 3 election.

There are five telephone lines, answered by clerks who will take the callers' names and addresses and mail them the requested number of registration affidavits for the appropriate county. Callers may then complete the forms and mail them (postage paid) to their county elections officials.

"I first offered this service before the Nov. 1984 general election and it was a great success," said Dr. Eu. "In two months we received over 26,000 calls and mailed out more than 40,000 registration forms. I hope this year we can surpass those figures."

Longtime Carmel resident Natalie Murray, 75, dies

NATALIE MURRAY was laid to rest in Dallas, Texas March 31 near her Lamplighter School she helped found in 1953 with longtime friend Sandy Swain.

Mrs. Murray, a member of the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission and 13-year resident, was 75 when she died March 24 following a lengthy illness.

Born June 13, 1910 in Sedalia, Texas and raised in Dallas, Mrs. Murray was graduated from San Francisco State College.

It was there that she and friend Ms. Swain developed their dream plans to open a school, which would operate under the philosophy that "a child is not a vessel to be filled...but a lamp to be lighted."

The idea was to have a school with no report cards and no school bells. Children would proceed at their own pace with individualized attention.

"It was in Dallas, Texas on one well-timed weekend that we stumbled onto a red brick farmhouse complete with barn, a horse and five acres of land on the outskirts of the city," the two wrote of their search for a home for their idea 34 years ago.

"In those days women in Texas with steady employment but no husbands could not borrow money. Two women without husbands and with no steady employment shouldn't even have been allowed to fill out the forms. But they're venturesome down in

With the loan, Mrs. Murray and Ms. Swain opened the Lamplighter School for grades kindergarten through fourth.

Mrs. Murray and Ms. Swain operated the school for 13 years until they retired to Carmel in 1973.

Five years later Mrs. Murray was named to the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission and was at one time its chairwoman. She was on the board at the time of her death.

Mrs. Murray was buried in RestLawn Cemetery in Dallas. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

License fee Increases set

Hunting and fishing license fee increases, part of a fiscal program approved in October to help the Department of Fish and Game avoid financial shortfalls in the current fiscal year, are only slightly higher than they would have been through automatic indexing for inflation, the DFG has reported.

The resident all-purpose sport fishing license, which increased from $13.75 to $18.50 as of Jan. 1, would have been $16.25 in 1986 without the new fiscal pro-

"The fee increases are only one part of the financial picture," said DFG Director Jack Parnell. "We are facing a $7.2 million deficit, and the majority of the funding we needed — $5.2 million came to us from the state general fund and other sources. The balance about $2 million - will be a result of the approximately $2 plus increase in most and anglers that the fee increases are part of a one-year legislative bill, and that additional legislation will be needed to extend the increases beyond 1986.

"We are working with the Legislature and the administration to come up with a sound funding base that reflects our role as steward of all the fish and wildlife in California — and not just the game species," Parnell said. Thus we are looking for sources of funding to augment what we receive in fees from the state's sportsmen and sportswomen.

"Whatever is finally decided regarding alternate funding sources will be an important factor in determining whether license fees can be reduced next year," Parnell

UBITUARIES

Barbara H. West

A memorial service took place March 24 at All Saints' Christian Church in Clifton, Bristol, England for Barbara Horder West, well-known Carmel artist and drama coach, who died March 15 at her home in Clifton. She was Born in London, she was the daughter of the eminent English architect P. Morley Horder. She studied at the Central School of Speech and Drama at Albert Hall. Her acting experience included two years with Sybil Thorndike's company in England, and later, Broadway appearances with Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh in their production of "Romeo and Juliet."

She married R. Rolleston West, D.S.O., an engineer, and they moved to Canada where Mrs. West directed theater productions and studied painting.

In 1954 the Wests came to Carmel, where she studied with John and Patricia Cunningham at the Carmel Art Institute. She was a life member of the Carmel Art Association and exhibited in various West Coast cities. During this period she maintained her own gallery studio at Sunset Center. She also served for a number of years as a vocal coach, speech teacher and director at the second Golden Bough Playhouse and later at the Forest Theater in Carmel.

Shortly after the death of her husband in 1975, she returned to England and took up residence in Clifton. She continued to paint and exhibit in a number of smaller shows in the west England scaport city.

Survivors include her sister, Mrs. Thoby Fisher of Clifton, and numerous nieces and nephews in England.

Joseph A. Brinton

Funeral services took place April 1 in the chapel of Alta Mesa Memorial Park in Palo Alto for Joseph A. Brinton, a resident of Carmel since 1963, who died March 26 at Community Hospital. He was 82.

Born Oct. 29, 1903 in Hampton, Nova Scotia, Canada, he moved to Victoria, British Columbia at the age of eight. He attended Victoria schools and was a graduate of Spratt-Shaw Col-

He came to California in 1923 and worked in the hardware trade in San Francisco, then spent 16 years with his uncle's hardware store in Los Gatos. He also served as a member of the Los Gatos Unified School Board for several years.

During World War II, he worked in the defense industry for the Joshua Hendy Iron Works. In 1945, he opened his own retail hardware store in San Jose, which he operated for 20 years until his retirement.

He served on the board of directors of Brinton's Retail Business, established in 1961. The present owner grew up in his father's hardware store in San Jose, then came to Carmel as a newlywed and opened the store at the mouth of the valley in Carmel.

Mr. Brinton was a member of the Carmel Presbyterian Church, the Los Gatos Masonic Lodge, F&AM and the San Jose Rotary Club.

Survivors include his wife Lois; two sons, Avard and Richard, both of Carmel; his aunt, Martha Vodden of Los Gatos, and three grandchildren of Carmel.

Michal D. Overhulse

Inurnment took place in El Carmelo Cemetery for Michal Dawn Overhulse of Berkeley, who died March 1 at her home. She was 63.

Born June 27, 1922 in San Jose, she moved with her family to Carmel in 1924 and grew up there. She graduated from Sunset School in Carmel and Monterey High School. She moved with her family to Oakland during World War II.

She received a bachelos of arts degree in psychology from California State University at San Jose, and a master's degree from the University of Maryland. She was a professor of psychology at Stevens College in Missouri for several years.

She returned to the Monterey Peninsula about 30 years ago because of ill health. She wrote poetry and two of her books were published after her return to the peninsula. She contributed to the Poetry Shell in Carmel and several magazines in Berkeley. She moved back to Berkeley in

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

June McClean of Visalia. California, had to slow down her pace when she began conducting an aerobics class last year. Most of her students were out-of-shape women in their 40s and 50s who just couldn't exercise strenuously as June, even though she happened to be 71 years old. A native of Australia, Mrs. McClean has followed the same regimen for years to keep herself in shape-20 minutes of stretching exercises, then a tenminute workout on a trampoline.

Milk is a rich source of nutrients we need for good health, including protein and vitamins. Unfortunately, though, many older people avoid milk because it causes them digestive disorders. A study by doctors from the University of Minnesota and the Veterans Administration Medical Center has found that, for such people, yogurt may be an excellent alternative.

You and I were even younger when postcards cost a penny, phone calls a nickel and five-and-ten cent stores meant what they said.

Composer's new age recording breaks tradition

Point Lobos inspired title piece

By ANNE PAPINEAU

HOLLAND DHYANA Garcia of Carmel has released his first recording, a musical tribute to East and West that includes his paean to a cherished place — Point Lobos.

"I find Point Lobos to be a very healing and nourishing place, a very calming place," the composer explained. "I sense a wholeness there that is quite lacking in this culture."

The work is titled Point Lobos: New Age Romantic Piano, but Garcia, a pianist for 29 years, maintains that his recording transcends the traditional new age mode.

"Most people think of new age music as non-acoustic, synthesizer music. They think of it as quiet, happy, mellow, meditative music.

"My definition of what I'd like it to mean is music that expresses the human potential. It can be wild, passionate, dramatic music. The word new in new age implies a more spiritual, wholistic outlook on life. What appeals to me is music that expresses the full spectrum of human emotions. Most new age musicians from my viewpoint express a narrow band of the possible spectrum. They don't express the heroic or the abysmal, extreme sadness and despair. Most don't express ecstasy and exultation. It's primarily sort of rainy day mellow music."

For Point Lobos Garcia drew from not only his classical musical training but also the compositions and performances that have inspired him since childhood.

A graduate of the Carmel schools system, Garcia, 38, studied plano with such peninsula teachers as Gilbert Boyer, Eiko Yoshizato, Margaret Aitkenhead, Marjorie Wurzmann and Angie Machado.

"At age 10 I heard Rusty Draper, a folk nger. I decided right then I wanted to play piano. My folks bought a piano, but it really vasn't their idea at all."

Garcia required little coaching from his parents to practice at the instrument. The self-inspired student won a Monterey Peninsula Jazz Festival scholarship in 1966 and second prize in the composition open class at the 1974 Okanagan Music Festival for Composers.

Garcia said his musical horizons were further broadened during his tenure — 1960 to 1970 — as an usher for both the Carmel Music Society and Carmel Bach Festival.

"Of all the hundreds of concerts I went to years ago there was only a handful in which the artists transcended themselves and expressed the inexpressible," Carcia observed.

"I remember Byron Janis playing Prokofiev's Toccata, and Artur Rubinstein playwhich I felt absolutely transported. In all the The pianist returned to Carmel in 1984. In others the performers just played the notes." addition to composing, he continues to teach

He continued his studies with Istvan Nadas at Washington State University and, at the Victoria Conservatory of Music in Canada, he studied composition with Jean Ethridge and improvisation with George Essihos.

Arts festival embraces a variety of disciplines

By ANNE PAPINEAU

AN ARTS organization that has already set down roots in several countries sends out its first shoots to YUGOSLAVIAN-BORN concert violinist and IDRIART cofounder Miha Pogacnik will perform at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, April 16 in the Carmel Mission Basilica. Concert tickets are $12. Admission to a 7 p.m. lecture by George Kuhlewind is $7.

Carmel during a Wednesday, April 16 program at sculpture, watercolor, Japanese flower arrangement, poetry Carmel Mission.

The organization is called IDRIART, short for Institute for the Development of Intercultural Relations through the Arts. As part of its Santa Cruz/Monterey Bay Festival, IDRIART will present a lecture, concert and art exhibition in Carmel.

Yugoslavian-born violinist Miha Pogacnik has organized concerts and lectures in Europe since the late '70s. Himself a veteran of more than 100 concerts annually, Pogacnik studied with Igor Ozim, Max Rostal, Henryk Szeryng and Josef Gingold. He has soloed with orchestras on five continents. By 1977 Pogacnik conceived of the idea of establishing festivals that would "raise people's consciousness through the arts."

The first of Pogacnik's festivals took place in Chartres, France, in 1981. Another followed in 1982, and in 1983 2,000 people from more than 30 countries attended the Chartres festival.

IDRIART was officially launched in 1984, and incorporation of the non-profit group took place in March 1985. Pogacnik, who will perform two works of J.S. Bach in Carmel, is the co-founder and director of IDRIART. He makes his home in New Hampshire.

"What we are trying to do is bring people together through the arts," explained Martine Descollonges, regional vice president of IDRIART USA. "The difference at an IDRIART festival is in the attitude of the artist and the participant. Through the arts people can really touch on a deeper level. We try to bring a better cultural knowledge in general. If you have a better knowledge you can better understand the world and what is around you."

The Wednesday program at Carmel Mission will begin with a 7 p.m. lecture by George Kuhlewind on "The Consciousness of Music." At 8:15 p.m. the San Francisco Boys' Chorus will perform, as will Pogacnik. The violinist's repertoire is to include Bach's Sonata No. 3 in C Major and Partita No. 3 in E Exhibited concurrently in Crespi Hall on the mission grounds will be a show of Native American art by Stan Padilla. "This festival is international," stressed Descollonges. "It is part of a world series."

In addition to Wednesday's programs at Carmel Mission, the Santa Cruz Monterey Bay Festival continues through Sunday, April 20 with activities in Watsonville, Santa Cruz and San Juan Bautista. The local festival embraces additional lectures and concerts, as well as exhibitions of dance, and drama.

Registration is also being accepted on an international basis

Chamber Music Society presents Philomusica

THE CHAMBER MUSIC Society of the Monterey Peninsula presents the New York Philomusica in concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 12 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

Nine musicians of the New York Philomusica will play Haydn's Divertimento in E flat, Hob. 14, No. 1, for piano, violin, cello, contrabass and two horns; Berg's Adagio for Kammerconcert, for clarinet, violin and piano; Bruch's Trios (three selections), Opus 83, for clarinet, violin and piano; and Mozart's Divertimento No. 17 in D, K. 334, for two violins, viola, cello, contrabass and two horns.

The following musicians will perform in the Carmel concert:

David Krakauer, clarinet, holds a master's degree from the Juilliard School and has performed as soloist and with the best of New York's chamber ensembles as well as at the Marlboro Festival. He has toured with "Music from Marlboro" and is a member of the Aspen Wind Quintet.

Robert Johnson, horn, is founder and artistic director of New York Philomusica. He was a member of the New York Philharmonic from 1962 to 1969.

Brooks Tillotson, horn, is one of New York's most highly regarded freelance and commercial horn players and has presented several solo recitals in Town Hall and Alice Tully Hall.

Robert Levin, piano, is a Harvard graduate, headed the theory department at the Curtis Institute, Philadelphia, from 1968 to 1973, and since 1972 has been professor of music at SUNY Purchase. He performed with the Boston Symphony from 1968 to 1973, when he joined Philomusica.

Todd Phillips, violin, studied with Sally Thomas at Juilliard and Sandor Vegh at the Mozarteum in Salzburg. At 13 he made his debut at the Pittsburgh Symphony.

Naoko Tanaka, violin, studied at Tokyo's Toho School and at the Juilliard School after coming to the United States. She won the Artists' International Competition and regularly appears as soloist and concertmistress at the Caramoor Festival.

Karen Tuttle, viola, at age 16 toured the United States as a violin virtuoso and then studied viola with William Primrose whom she succeeded at age 25 to become head of viola and chamber music at the Curtis Institute. Beginning in 1955 she performed in eight Pablo Casals Festivals in Prades, and in 10 Marlboro Festivals. In 1981 she performed all of the Haydn quartets for WNYC-TV and has toured widely in the United States and Canada, giving masters classes in viola and chamber music. Tuttle has recorded for Columbia, the Haydn Society and MCA.

Marcy Rosen, cello, is a graduate of the Curtis Institute and has won several competitions including the Washington International Competition. She has appeared as soloist with major orchestras including the Philadelphia Orchestra and was a founding member with Pina Carmirelli of the Boccherini Ensemble. Rosen is cellist of the Mendelssohn String Quartet, a member of the St. Lukes Ensemble, and has participated in six Marlboro Festivals and seven of their tours. Musical America named her "Young Artist of 1981." She has recorded for Columbia, Nonesuch, Pro Arte, and the Marlboro Recording Society.

Peter Weitzner, contrabass, has performed with many New York-based and other chamber, orchestral, and opera groups. In chamber music his associations include the Wantastiquet Chamber Players, the Tidewater Festival, and the Odyssey Chamber Players. Weitzner has appeared as soloist with the Baltimore Symphony and has toured in the United States, Canada, and Europe. He has recorded for Nonesuch, Granadilla and the Musical Heritage Society. Applications for membership in the Chamber Music Society for the 1986/87 season will be available at the concert. The new chamber music series will include a concert by the Guarneri Quartet.

Single tickets are $8 at the door before the concert. For information about this concert or the 1986/87 season call 372-5981.

A PROGRAM OF works by Haydn, Berg, Bruch and Mozart will be performed by the New York Philomusica when the ensemble appears Saturday, April 12 at Sunset Theater, San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue, Carmel. Tickets are $8.

Rascals of Ragtyme top hot jazz society afternoon

The Rascals of Ragtyme and Swing will be the featured band at the monthly meeting of the Monterey Bay Hot Jazz Society.

The Rascals are familiar to Santa Cruz County Dixieland fans. The band and its leader, Red Malone, have been featured at clubs, nightclubs, grand openings and community activities in the Monterey Bay area.

Drummer and leader Red Malone has played with such bands as the Count Basie All Stars and The Dukes of Dixieland. Other band members include Dale Mills on clarinet, Max Hartstein playing bass, Lou Kizer, cornet and vocals, Gerald "Doc" Crary on tenor banjo, and Doug Tideback featured on trombone.

The meeting will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 13 at the Moose Lodge in Monterey.

For further information call Zella Crary at 688-4050.

THE OAKLAND BALLET Troupe will dance at Sunset Theater in Carmel at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 15. The theater is on San Carlos Street near Ninth Avenue in Carmel. For tickets, call 624-3996.

Oakland Ballet to appear

THE OAKLAND Ballet Troupe will dance at Sunset Theater in Carmel on Tuesday, April 15. The troupe replaces Les Ballet Jazz de Montreal, which cancelled its West Coast tour.

The Oakland Ballet's dance repertoire will consist of selections from The Seasons by Alexander Glazunov; Trois Gymnopedies with music of Erik Satie; Gallops and Kisses with music of Johann Strauss; Afternoon of a Faun by Debussy and Ravel's Bolero.

The company last performed at Sunset Theater in February 1983. "As a regional company, it deserves the fanfare," a reviewer noted at that time.

The Oakland Ballet began in 1954 with Raoul Pause, a former student of Adolph Bohm and Harold Kreutzner, who established the Ballet Player's Guild of Oakland. In 1961 Ronn Guidi, then associate director of the guild, staged ballets for a small faction of the group. During that year the guild changed its name to the Oakland Civic Ballet.

A nucleus of that group, with Guidi, formed a professional wing, expanded and in 1965 officially became the Oakland Ballet.

The company has traveled more than one million miles on tour and dance in nearly every state of the union as well as abroad.

Tickets to the 8 p.m. performance will be $8 and $10. Tickets reserved for Les Pullet Jazz de Montreal will also be honored at the April 15 performance. For reservations or additional information, call the Sunset Center director's office at 624-3996.

MUSIC, CORNER BY JO ANN LA TORRA

Concerts reflect inherent strengths, weaknesses

CHRISTINE EDINGER, one of the stars of the annual Carmel Bach Festival, appeared in a solo recital here on April 1, as a benefit for the festival. This was truly a solo recital — not even a piano to provide a change of color. Wisely, Edinger kept the program short, for an entire evening of one sound in a limited range challenges the concentration.

The most interesting playing of the evening was in a solo sonata by the contemporary German composer, Boris Blacher (1903-75). Blacher belonged to a generation of German composers whose careers were affected in various ways by the rise of the Nazi regime. He survived the difficulties and had a successful postwar career.

Like most composers of his generation, Blacher was somewhat influenced by Hindemith, but was largely untouched by the avant-garde tendencies of a slightly younger group. He found his individual voice in a style that is clear, clean and well-structured. Edinger gave a solid reading to the piece.

Three Caprices by Paganini followed, a very sharp contrast. It is easy to see why violinists like to play these pieces — they are brilliant in sound and well-written for the instrument. They show off the best of Edinger, i.e., her accuracy and excellent bow technique.

Two of Bach's solo works for violin filled out the program. Extremely difficult on the modern violin, with its high bridge and taut bow, they have nevertheless found their way into the standard repertoire. It was almost impossible to distinguish one dance from another in Edinger's interpretation, but she did bring to them her technical accuracy, and that is something in these works.

THE MOST RECENT series of the Monterey Bay Symphony featured Norman Jean Hodges as soprano soloist in Mahler's Fourth Symphony, and Ron Weitzman in a plea for funds.

Haydn's magnificent Symphony No. 104 opened the program in an interpretation that leaned more toward Beethoven than to the early symphonic tradition. This is certainly not without precedent, but my personal preference is for a more open sound and more crispness.

The Mahler got off to a rocky start on Friday night, and it quickly became apparent that reach exceeded grasp. There was some good playing from individual musicians that did not go unnoticed, but Mahler requires considerable depth in the ranks.

This raises a serious question for orchestras of this type: given a limited amount of rehearsal time, should they stick with only the repertoire that even the least skillful members can manage, or should they attempt the virtuoso orchestra literature? There are viable arguments on both sides.

Hodges' lovely sound is too light for an orchestra of this size, especially in Sunset Theater where orchestral sound gets muddy. Maestro Kovalenko continually quieted the orchestra, but the effort was only partially successful, often because of the writing itself, not because the musicians were not trying. The words were impossible to understand; fortunately, they were printed in the program.

Kovalenko is generally successful in controlling the large symphonic forms; it is the detail work that one misses. Both Haydn and Mahler suffered from a lack of precision and definition in intonation and articulation. Some of this is economic — there is not enough money for the necessary rehearsal time. And that returns us full circle to the question above.

Note: The Camerata Singers concerts cannot be reviewed here, as I am among the recorder players.

Classics for piano to be performed by Navah Perlman-

PIANIST Navah Perlman will appear in recital at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 10 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue, Carmel.

Fifteen-year-old daughter of famed violinist Itzhak Perlman, Navah is a student at the Brearly School in New York City and at the Juilliard School of Music, where she spends every Saturday studying piano, theory and related subjects. Navah is the only one of Itzhak Perlman's five children who seems destined for a musical career. At the age of five she started pestering her parents for piano lessons, and her self-motivated dedication has grown over the years to the point where she now spends four to five hours a day at the piano.

Navah made her debut at age 12 playing the Haydn D Major Piano Concerto with a youth orchestra in New York City. She has subsequently been a soloist with the Israel Philharmonic, the Brooklyn College Orchestra, the Palo Alto Chamber Orchestra and the Rochester Philharmonic.

Her program in Carmel will include Bach's French Suite in E Major, Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 109, Mendelssohn's Variations Serieuses, Two Preludes by Rachmaninoff and the Prokofiev Sonata No. 3 in A Minor.

Tickets are priced from $4 to $10 and are available at Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard, Abinante Music in Monterey. The Baldwin Music Center in Pacific Grove and at the box office on the evening of the performance. For further information call Bronson Concerts at 625-0797.

Jazz duo to join forces with MPC ensemble, big band

THE MONTEREY Peninsula College Jazz Ensemble and Alumni Jazz Big Band will perform with the husbandwife jazz duo Smith and Gail Dobson at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 13 in the MPC Music Hall.

The Dobsons, with Gail as vocalist and Smith on piano, have distinguished themselves as a jazz force to be reckoned with up and down the West Coast. After their gig at the New Orleans Bar and Grill in Oakland San Francisco Examiner music critic Philip Elwood wrote, "Theirs is a true duo - they sing together, swapping lead and harmony and even when Gail gets going in a solo role Smith's lustrous piano back-up greatly enhances the performance."

In another review after they performed in San Francisco, Elwood praised Smith as "a keyboard technician of astonishing - if not virtuoso — caliber," adding that "he has a sure, crisp keyboard attack, playing with a delicate laciness on light numbers and like a charging herd of cattle on the powerhouse titles.'

Smith launched his jazz career in the military in 1967 when he was selected to perform with "Airmen of Note," the official White House Jazz Band and a direct offshoot of the Glen Miller Dance Band. The band was favored with appearances on both the Mike Douglas and Merv Griffin shows.

In the years following Dobson toured the Gail has performed as the lead jazz vocalist in several clubs in San Francisco, including Hungry I, The Purple Onion and Keystone Corner.

The MPC Jazz Ensemble and Alumni Jazz Big Band, led by arranger/composer Don Schamber, have been fueling the local Monterey jazz scene for several years. Schamber's work has been featured on three Pete Peterson (The Collection Jazz Orchestra) records: "Might as Well Be Spring" on Texas State of Mind, seven arrangements (including two original compositions: "Passing Fancy" and "First Things First") on Jazz Journey and six on Playin' in the Park.

Sunday's concert will include several original arrangements by Schamber of such jazz favorites as "Take the A Train," "As Time Goes By," "Count On It," "Shiny Stockings" and "Maiden Voyage."

The audience will also hear the premiere performance of "I'm Old Fashioned," Schamber's newest original jazz arrangement for big band.

The Dobsons will perform as guest soloists with both ensembles, in addition to performing their own pieces. Concert tickets are

Carmel pianist commits his compositions to tape

"It's a very radical method," Garcia said.
"It is a whole-body method of piano playing that develops a natural technical expertise and ease of playing. It takes a while to train the other muscles in this method. The control is in your knuckles."

GARCIA'S RETURN to the Monterey Peninsula also renewed his commitment to composing.

"Point Lobos inspired the title piece on my tape. I was studying with a professional composer in Canada and when I played this for him he said 'This is the first piece that's totally you.'

"Previous to that time I'd thought of composing music, and a friend asked me why I didn't compose," he recalled. "I said I'd never be as good as Bach or Beethoven so why bother. He told me, well, few people do become those towering figures — but why don't you just try it and express yourself."

In the late '70s, while studying for his teacher's and performer's diplomas at the Associate of the Royal Conservatory of Toronto, Garcia took additional courses in music theory, counterpoint, harmony and history.

His compositions took a direction that was different, he maintained, from the pieces he studied.

"I call it 'new romanticism,' it comes from the heart and is aimed at the listener's heart. It's derived from the Romantic music of the last century but uses 20th century compositional techniques. My harmonies are very 20th century."

In addition to the title work, Point Lobos contains improvisations on classical themes. Fantasia uses as its starting point Rimsky-Korsakov's Song of India and the Christian hymn, Holy, Holy, Holy.

"It's like East meeting West," Garcia noted. "The last piece, Lost in the Here and Now, was composed in the last year. A lot of my music sat around and germinated for many years. I just wrote down a piece that has been in my mind for 10 years."

Garcia released the recording under his own label on Feb. 21. It is available around the Monterey Peninsula, and in Carmel at Pilgrim's Way, Do Re Mi and The Armoire.

The pianist has other compositions he hopes to commit to tape and release in the near future. His second release, he said, will be titled Shadows on the Clouds on the Hills of Carmel.

"So many performers today want to play it safe and just play the notes and not risk expressing their own individuality," he noted. "So many of the performers sound alike. They're note perfect but generally I'm bored.

"For this first tape I chose music I thought the most mellow of my music, but even so it's not the meditative music most people think of as new age music. My second tape will be still more explosive and dramatic."

HOLLAND DHYANA Garcia of Carmel has produced and released his first recording, Point Lobos, New Age Romantic Piano Solos. (Michaelia Morgan photo).

Jung/A.A. connection examined

HOW DID Alcoholics Anonymous get started? What did the noted Swiss psychologist C.G. Jung have to do with Answers to those questions will be part of the program slated for 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 16 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel, sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung.

To explore further connections between A.A. and Jung, questions regarding the "Twelve Steps" suggested by Alcoholics Anonymous will be discussed.

Participants will be encouraged to submit oral and written questions, which will help spark comments and form the basis for a major part of the evening's program. The announcement invites the public to come "... and help all of us discover possible new ways of resolving chronic blockages to movement in our journeys toward wholeness."

The Friends of C.G. Jung is a group of people who are finding mutual support while enlarging their knowledge of Jung's psychological insights. This program is the fifth of the current series of events designed to fulfill that purpose.

There will be no admission fee. For further information, call or write Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung, 853 Pacific St., Monterey; 649-8809.

Caring for the elderly addressed

A workshop primarily designed for children, spouses and other caregivers of a dependent older person will be offered from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, April 30 at the Pacific Grove Community Center, 515 Junipero, in Pacific Grove. The workshop will present information on the stress and problems created by caring for an aging parent or relative.

Accreditation will be available for administrators and managers of skilled nursing and residential care facilities and medical professionals. A registration fee will be charged to cover workshop expenses: $15 for non-credit and $30 for credit.

To register send name and fee to Friendly Visitor Program, 200 Glenwood Circle, Monterey, 93940, or call the Friendly Visitor office at 649-1222. Registration will also be available at the door.

With people living into their 80s and 90s or longer, more "adult children" are put in the position of having to cope with caring for a dependent parent and at the same time meet the obligations of spouse, family and job. These demands often create divisions in the caregiver's own family, time from work and financial, jegal and other social problems.

During the morning session the workshop will address the topics "Aging Today and its Effect on Family," "Caregiver's Feelings and Stress," "Assessing a Problem: a Review of Chronic Health Care Issues." The afternoon session will cover resources available in the community and information on legal and psychological issues, Social Security and MediCare.

The Friendly Visitor Program of the Alliance on Aging, Monterey County Health Department, The Maurine Coburn School of Nursing at Monterey Peninsula College and Hartnell School of Nursing are co-sponsoring this workshop. Virginia Baille, R.N., M.A., C.S. is the workshop coordinator.

Center offers genetic diagnosis, counseling

Genetic diagnosis and counseling services are available through the San Andreas Regional Center (SARC). Genetic and birth defects specialists from the University of California, San Francisco, will be in Salinas to conduct a Satellite U.C.S.F. Genetics Clinic at Natividad Medical Center. The clinic is especially designed for people who live some distance from genetic services and is offered periodically throughout the year.

More than a quarter of a million infants are born each year in the United States with some type of birth defect. More and more infants with birth defects are surviving as a result of improved medical care in intensive care nurseries. At the same time, genetic specialists are learning the causes of some of these defects and developing screening and diagnostic tests and treatments for some disorders.

Genetic counseling can provide information to a family about the nature of a disorder, available treatment and prevention, and the risks of recurrence in subsequent children or relatives. It can help parents better understand the causes of a disorder and correct misinformation and feelings of guilt or inadequacy. It can help them make decisions about future pregnancies.

At the Genetics Clinic, the 728-1781.

family meets with a genetic counselor and a physician who reviews the medical and family history. At that time a physical examination may be done and additional testing may be recommended. Information about the defect, cause, risk or recurrence, prevention and any other concerns of the family are discussed.

Medical insurance covers the charges for counseling services and any needed laboratory work. Funds are available through the center for those without insurance. For more information, contact the San Andreas Regional Center, 754-1571 or 728-1781.

THE MOST RECENT serigraph by Joanna viewed at Hanson Gallery, Ocean Avenue Zjawinska is My Brilliant Career. It can be near San Carlos Street in Carmel.

Zjawinska originals, prints shown

ORIGINAL PAINTINGS and serigraphs by Joanna Zjawinska are exclusively represented through Hanson Galleries.

Her works can be viewed at the Carmel gallery on Ocean Avenue near San Carlos Street.

Joanna Zjawinska was born in 1950 in a small Polish mining community. Although her parents recognized her talent as a painter, they urged her to build her career in the applied arts, as they felt it would result in a more lucrative profession. Her grandmother was very supportive and sent her through art school, but in 1963 Joanna left to study architecture. During her third year as a student, Joanna's father died of an illness brought on during his interment in Auschwitz.

In 1968 she began to study graphics at the academy of fine arts in Warsaw. Although successful, Joanna knew that her real talents lay as a painter, and in 1975 she moved to New York to pursue this. While in New York, Joanna met her husband Mark, also a painter, who encouraged her to complete her training in painting.

Joanna and Mark returned to Warsaw in 1977, at which time Joanna graduated with highest honors in painting and began her career as an artist. Three years later she moved to San Francisco and began exhibiting at Hanson Galleries. Since 1979, Hanson Galleries has remained the exclusive representative of Joanna Zjawinska's art work, sharing her talent with collectors world wide.

A major event in the career of Joanna Zjawinská occurred this month. Hanson Galleries, for the first time, represented Zjawinska and her works at the New York International Art Exposition. The Expo, a gathering place for artists and dealers from around the world, is designed to provide the needed exposure for galleries and the artists they represent. With increased exposure comes the obvious increase in demand for an artist's work.

Friends acknowledges creative photographers

THE FRIENDS of Photography's annual Peer Awards in Creative Photography were presented March 8 in San The award for Francisco. "Distinguished Career in Photography" was received by Beaumont Newhall of Santa Fe. An award for "Photographer of 1985" was given to artist Robert Heinecken.

The award presentation took place during the annual meeting of the board of trustees of The Friends of Photography. Awards were made by Peter C. Bunnell, president of the board, and Executive Director James Alinder.

The award for "Distinguished Career in Photography' is intended to recognize and honor one of the senior figures in the field of creative photography - a photographer. critic, curator, historian or other individual whose work has advanced the state of photography and who has set an example of high standards and dedication.

Recipient Beaumont Newhall was born in Lynn, Mass. in 1908 and was educated in art history at Harvard. After receiving his M.A. from Harvard's Graduate School of Arts and Sciences in 1931, he studied at the Institut d'Art et d'Archeologie of the University of Paris and at the Courtauld Institute of Art of the University of London. Newhall has also received numerous honorary degrees and awards, including a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1947 and 1975, and in 1984 he was the first photography-related recipient of the prestigious John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Fellowship.

Newhall, who has more than 600 articles and books to his credit, is the author of the classic text The History of Photography, now in its fourth edition. Through this publication, he has been the teacher of the majority of those educated in the history of photography.

Newhall was the founding director of the department of photography at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City in 1938. became curator of the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House (Rochester, N.Y.) in 1948 and was director of that institution from 1958 to 1971. He and his late wife Nancy were founding members of The Friends of Photography in 1967. He retired from his professional position at the University of New Mexico in 1984 but continues to reside in Santa Fe.

THE AWARD for "Photographer of the Year" is specifically intended for a practicing photographer whose past work has made an important contribution to the creative photograpy field, and who is actively producing new work. It is a "mid-career" award that recognizes past achievement and encourages new work.

Recipient Robert Heinecken was born in 1931 in Denver, Colo. In 1957 after four years as a fighter pilot in the United States Marine Corps, he was discharged as a captain and resumed his art studies at UCLA. He began teaching drawing, design and printmaking at UCLA in the fine arts department in 1960, and by 1962 he had initiated the photographic curriculum there.

During this time, he explored manipulative photography, using this exploration to make cultural statements. He has since received both a Guggenheim Fellowship and a National Endowment for the Arts Photographers Fellowship. Heinecken's innovative use of magazine imagery (using transfer, collage and photograming techniques), as well as his three-dimensional photo pieces, television imagery and "visual poetry" have both influenced the appearance of contemporary photography and renewed our understanding of photography's potential.

Also esteemed as an educator, he has been involved with The Society for Photographic Education since 1963 and served as chairman from 1971 to 1973. In addition to his professorship at UCLA, Heinecken has found time to serve as guest artist and instructor at several institutions.

Previous recipients of the "Distinguished Career in Photography" award have been Harry Callahan (1980), Aaron Siskind (1981), Frederick Sommer (1982), Berenice Abbott (1983) and Andre Kertesz (1984). "Photographer of the Year" awards have been presented to Lee Friedlander (1980), Joel Meyerowitz (1981), Robert Adams (1982), Paul Caponigro (1983) and Jerry Uelsmann (1984).

Carmel Art Association accepts applications

The Carmel Art Association will jury prospective provisional members on May 5 and again on Oct. 20. Application forms are available at the CAA, located in Carmel on Dolores Street near Sixth Avenue.

Applicants must have shown in a minimum of two professional galleries and in one juried competitive. Another requirement is that applicants must have resided within 35 miles of Carmel for at least one year.

Prospective members may apply in only one of the following categories: painting, graphics or sculpture. Six pieces of current work and at least three drawings must be submitted with completed applications to the gallery between 3 and 5 p.m. May 5 and should be picked up before 1 p.m. on May 6. Framed paintings and graphics must have been completed within the last 12 months and sculpture within the last 18 months.

A two-thirds majority vote by the current board of directors determines membership based on the artist's originality, continuity and professional quality. The last group of new members includes Micki Long, Irene Robinson, Barbara Johnson, Edith Trusdale and Susan Reith.

For more information call the CAA gallery at 624-6176.

The Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will present a volunteer training workshop from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, April 12 in the SPCA education building.

The workshop is open to persons 18 and older who would like to volunteer in a variety of animal-related areas. Those attending the workshop should bring a sack lunch.

The society has special needs for adoption counselors, pet visitation therapists, tour guides and clinic assistants. Volunteer assignments can be designed for those with interests in other areas or who have special talents they would like to use to help the animals.

For information, call 373-2631 or 422-4721.
